PUBLISHER'S NOTE.

An accurate and comprehensive "Guide" to the City of Little Rock has long been desirable, and hitherto nothing has been published deserving the name.

To make this a valuable handbook, neither expense nor labor have been spared, and as it bears the impress of a local character to a large degree, and treats extensively of the business features of a rapidly growing city, it will always be worthy of preservation. The map of Little Rock inserted in THE GUIDE shows the new boundaries, and the numerous engravings will give the stranger or visitor a good idea of many of our leading features.

The citizen of Little Rock will here find in permanent form a panoramic view of the city in A. D. 1890, which he can keep and hand down to his children.

We are pleased to say that our enterprise received kind encouragement on the part of the business men of Little Rock, although it is not issued "by authority" of any committee. The success of THE GUIDE rests on its own merits alone.

We take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to all those who have favored us with their cards, and to the public in general for its liberal support.

THE CITY OF ROSES.

On the shores of a beautiful river,
Where many a blossom uncloses,
And the birds make music forever—
Sits our queenly City of Roses.

One breath of her air dispels sorrow.
In the sound of her name there is magic.
Tho' as fair as a rose, like a giant she grows,
And the sighs of her rivals are tragic.

Like a giant she grows, where the swift river flows,
Laving her feet in the waters.
The states tribute bring; and "Cotton is King!"
Is the song of her radiant daughters.

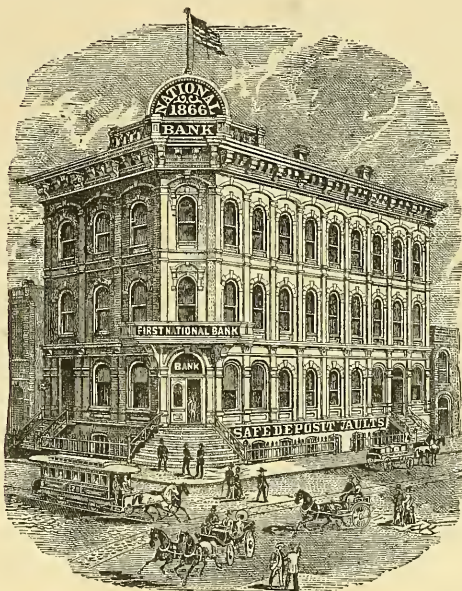

From the ashes and wreck of the war-time,
She rose like an empress victorious;
Now a multitude meets in her populous streets,
And the present, truly, is glorious:—

But had we the eye of a prophet
To see what the FUTURE discloses,
We'd buy corner lots, and the loveliest spots
In this beautiful City of Roses!

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900, where it will rest for 100 years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

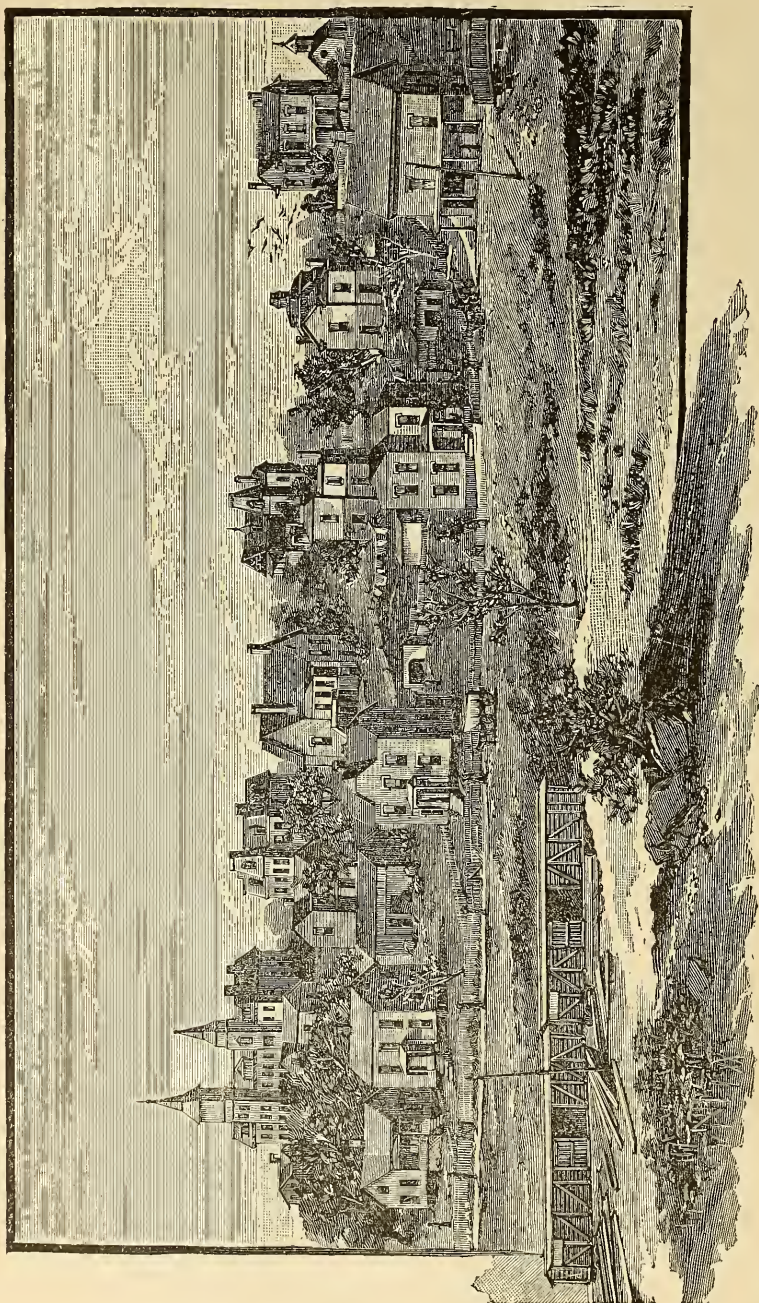

ARKANSAS was originally a portion of the vast Territory of Louisiana, purchased from the French in 1803 by President Jefferson. It remained a part of Louisiana Territory until 1812, when the present State of Louisiana was admitted to the Union, and the remainder was organized as Missouri Territory.

This name it held untill 1819, when Missouri formed a state constitution, and Arkansas was erected into a territory bearing its present name. It remained under territorial government from 1819 to 1836. When this territorial period began Little Rock had no existence. In 1820 the first settlement was formed, the town was surveyed and postoffice established. In the following year we find the settlement grown to a village. On the 20th of October, 1820, the Territorial Legislature chose Little Rock as the capital of the new territory. In the following year an attempt was made to change the name of the place to Arkapolis, but the less classical and more picturesque name, LITTLE ROCK, held its place in the people's favor.

On March 16, 1822, the first river boat reached this port. It was the steamer Eagle, under Captain Morris, seventeen days out from New Orleans. She proceeded up the river to within twelve miles of Dwight, in the Cherokee Nation.

In 1835 the village capital was raised to the dignity of an incorporated city. Her first mayor, elected that year, was a merchant named James Pitcher. On the 18th of November the first council met at Mayor Pitcher's store.

June, 1836, began a new epoch in her history. In that month a constitutional convention met at Little Rock and adopted a State Constitution with Little Rock as the capital. This gave to the new city an assured future, and its growth though slow was steady. Many things, however, retarded the growth of the new state. Emigration usually follows parallels of latitude, so that the Northern

DISTANT VIEW OF LINCOLN AVENUE AND UNIVERSITY.

States of the West got most of the emigrants from the Eastern States; while the emigration from the Southern States was naturally attracted to Texas, soon to add its star to the Union by the arbitrament of arms. So Arkansas grew on her own resources until the period of the war.

Though she was not a pivotal state in this conflict, she experienced the woes of border warfare. In January, 1861, the people decided by a vote of 27,412 to 15,826 in favor of a convention to consider the question of secession. That body assembled in March and deferred the decision to a popular election to be held in August. Meanwhile the state authorities seized the arsenals at Little Rock, Napoleon and Fort Smith. The convention reassembled May 6, in consequence of President Lincoln's call for troops, and passed the Ordinance of Secession by a vote of 69 to 1, withdrawing the submission of the question to the people.

It is not our purpose to go into the details of engagements between the Confederate and Union forces. After the tide of war had surged back and forth for more than two years over the fertile valleys of the state, an expedition of Federal troops under the command of Gen. Steele captured Little Rock on the 10th of September, 1863. On the 8th of January in the following year a convention assembled at Little Rock, when representatives from 42 counties were present, and framed a new constitution. At an election held March 14th, 12,177 votes were cast for the constitution and 226 against it. In April a State Government was organized. The new government was in power till the Reconstruction Act of March 2, 1867, was passed by Congress, when Arkansas and Mississippi were constituted the Fourth Military District. A registration of voters was made under instructions from Gen. Ord, and delegates were elected in November to a constitutional convention which assembled at Little Rock January 7, 1868. The new constitution was ratified by a small majority of the people in March. On June 22nd Congress passed over the President's veto a resolution admitting Arkansas to representation, and the administration was transferred to the civil authorities,—where it has rested ever since.

Little Rock has grown steadily in population ever since she was founded. No mushroom growth was hers, such as we sometimes see in the wondrous West—a survey one day, foundations of business blocks laid the next, and next week a population of 5,000 souls. It took Little Rock the forty-four years from 1820 to 1864 to muster the above population. But with the end of the war came the new era of growth and expansion. In 1870 she had more than doubled her population, in six years growing from 5,000 to 12,380. Between 1870 and 1880 there was but a slight increase—to 13,138. There came another boom, however, between 1880 and 1887, as the population shot up to 25,877, according to a careful census.

She still grows. One year later the estimate was over 30,000; and we shall be greatly mistaken if the U. S. census of the present year does not give her 40,000 people. This steady and encouraging growth is not the result of brag and bluster and boom advertising—even of the legitimate kind—but is the seal of nature set to our remarkable advantages. Little Rock is not only the political but the commercial capital of Arkansas; and where under the sun can a little money or brain or muscle find a better field of investment for itself than in this great undeveloped State of Arkansas. Virgin forest, rich bottom land, untold mineral—everything seems to say to man, "Come and take me!"

And they are coming. Wearied with the hopeless struggle with worn-out soils in the Eastern States, the farmer is coming to raise corn and cotton and fruit where nature is sure to smile upon his efforts. The frost-bitten denizens of the North are selling their winter overcoats at a heavy discount on cost price, and are coming to the Land of Summer. New England capitalists are discussing the propriety of saving freight both ways by manufacturing cotton goods where the cotton is raised. Mining syndicates are testing Arkansas ores, and preparing to sink shafts that will astonish the mining world. The Northwest is getting pretty well filled up. Even the Pacific Coast shows a population almost dense. Now the pressure is toward Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The people that migrate are the very people we want,—young, pushing, ambitious. We can get a large proportion of them if we but gain their ear. We have the worth, but worth alone never made any man rich. We must use the same printers'-ink methods that have filled Kansas with a race of business giants.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Come to this young Queen of the Southwest and prove the truth of the maxim. Little Rock is not a comet, but a star of steady splendor; and Emerson says, if you would rise you must

"Hitch your wagon to a star."

Notice this fact—that within the last ten years the population of Little Rock has trebled itself. Three years ago William G. Whipple was elected Mayor, and since that time the city has had the benefit of his wise foresight and untiring energy in that important position. It has been his special ambition to build up the material interests of the Capital City, and in this he has been remarkably successful. During his administration sixty miles of new sidewalk have been laid; twelve miles of streets have been greatly improved, and several miles more have been projected. These twelve miles include one mile of granite pavement—native granite, by the way. During this time the Town Branch "Cut-Off"—a piece of necessary engineering that had been talked of for thirty years—was built from Fourth Street to the river. The town-cow—with her chiming bell, and crumpled horn—has been required to absent herself from the public gaze. Cotton bales are no longer allowed to obstruct the streets and sidewalks. A magnificent system of electric lights has superseded gas lamps, saving half the current expense for light. A twelve-ton steam roller for leveling the streets has been purchased. Many miles of new sewer districts have been organized. The sidewalks have been widened throughout the city. The latest improvement is a complete electric fire alarm system, which has been recently introduced.

Viewed individually, many of these things may seem unimportant, but they are not so. They show the direction in which we have moved and are moving from the village to the city, from the city to the metropolis. In the growth of municipal life nothing is trivial. Every change indicates a step toward the higher or the lower level. With such a spirit among her leaders of public affairs, and such enthusiasm among the rank and file, the destiny of this city must be onward to a prominent place among the cities of our great Nation.

The City as It Is To-day.

The aspects of the city are as various as the points of view. As you approach Little Rock from the north side of the river, you see the south side lined with warehouses and manufacturing establishments. Many steamers, chiefly for the cotton trade, are plying through the waters below you, or lying at the wharf unloading and taking on freight.

Look out upon the city from some elevated point, as the University tower or the summit of Big Rock, and the first thing that will strike you will be the extraordinary number of church towers. You will conclude that this must be a very religious city. (Don't be hasty in arriving at conclusions, however.)

Most prominent of all, the golden cross of the Catholic Cathedral glitters in the sunlight; while the spires of Christ Church, Episcopal, the First Presbyterian, the handsome German Lutheran, the Cumberland Presbyterian, and other churches attract the eye even at that distance. Little Rock might almost be called the City of Churches, so numerous and prominent are these edifices. Nor does she seem to think that what she already has are enough. The era of church building has not yet passed away and probably never will. In quite recent years have the Episcopalians built Trinity Cathedral in the southern part of the city, the Southern Methodists erected Winfield Memorial, and the Baptists reared a noble structure at Twelfth and Louisiana. This latter has just been completed, and is a credit to the generous organization at whose expense it has been built. The value of the entire church property of the city is estimated at half a million dollars.

The state institutions and public buildings are all worthy of a visit. An idea of their appearance may be gained from the illustrations in this work, but pictures and descriptions can only suggest. Seeing is believing, and not only may the tourist or casual visitor be entertained by making a round of the sights of Little Rock, but our own citizens who pass them every day might be benefited by some attentive study of our institutions.

Deaf-Mutes. Supplement that visit by attending one of their evening entertainments. Witness the mutual interest of teachers and pupils, and if you are so fortunate as to be a citizen of Arkansas, go home proud of your State.

Or if you want to see the latest scientific methods employed in the instruction of a class of students before whom mysterious Providence or an unkind fate has drawn a curtain of darkness, ask Supt. Dye to show you through the School for the Blind. Notice the scrupulous order and neatness of everything. Here the blind are taught in many ways how to cultivate the senses which they have, and how to make these senses minister to the growth of the mind. Nor is this all; they learn various trades, by pursuing which they may earn their own living and become useful citizens.

One of the best evidences of the culture of a community is not the appearance of its business houses and public buildings, but the character of its private residences. Here is one of Little Rock's strong points. Stroll through almost any quarter of the city, and on every hand you will see evidences of the thrift of its inhabitants. They have an eye for the beautiful. They not only know how to make money, but how to spend it. More than their shops and warehouses they love their homes.

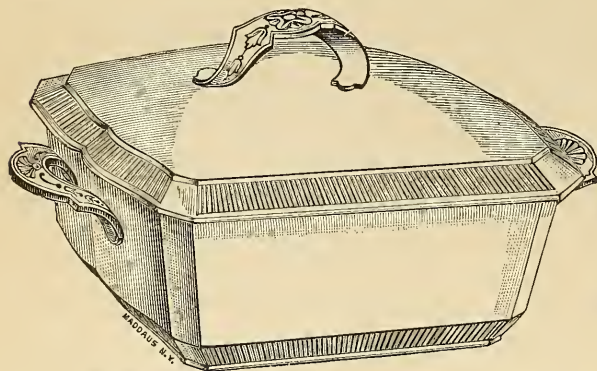

We shall present in this volume a few illustrations of Little Rock residences. Of course we do not pretend to give pictures of all the elegant residences. It would take a book like Webster's Unabridged to do that. We can only follow the example of our drummer friends and present a few "samples." Some represent the old era, others the new, but all bear the impress of character and individuality.

It would be difficult for a man to find a pleasanter place in which to live than Little Rock. The people are orderly and respect the laws. The city is well-built, but not too compact for comfort and fresh air. The facilities for education, either in public or private schools, are first-class. Horse-cars and steam-cars reach all parts of the city. The climate is mild in all seasons, avoiding the extremes "that try men's souls."

Some places afford pleasant homes and many advantages, but are dead for business. The golden current of trade has taken another course. But a home without the cheering presence of U. S. currency soon ceases to be pleasant.

"Love in a hut, with water and a crust,
Is (Love, forgive us!) ashes, cinders, dust."

But Little Rock not only presents the spot for a happy home, a place to rear and educate your children,—but it affords the means to pay the bills. Labor here commands a good price, and there is always a brisk demand for it. Farm products and all kinds of merchandise find ready purchasers at the highest market rate. In these growing and expanding years of the city's history is the time to go in and establish a business. "First come, first served." Wise is he in his day and generation who casts in his lot with the metropolis of Arkansas, the fair City of Roses.

HOW TO REACH VARIOUS PARTS OF THE CITY.

At the end of your journey, your train pulls in over one of the railroad bridges that span the Arkansas River, and stops at the Union Depot, Pulaski and Water Streets. Hacks await your orders.

Horse cars run from the depot, connecting to all parts of the city. The fare on all is only five cents, and you may be transferred to another car running in a different direction without further charge.

Should you take a hack at the Depot, have a distinct understanding with your driver how much he will charge you. It saves you possible annoyance, and first impressions of a place are sometimes lasting.

The Street Car System.

The stock of the Little Rock Street Railway and Citizens' Street Railway, controlled by Capt. James H. Miller, was, April 1, 1890, transferred to the Capital City Street Railway Company, and the lines were consolidated. H. G. Allis is the president, Geo. B. Rose, vice-president, and H. P. Bradford, manager of this new company.

There are four different lines in the system—the Main and Markham, Arch, Ninth, and Chester Street lines. The Main and Markham Street line starts from the Depot, and two blocks from the Depot, at the corner of Markham and Cross, it transfers those who desire to the Chester Street line. There is a double track all the way from the Depot to Fifteenth and Main.

Remaining on the Markham Street car you go east, passing Knott's Hotel and the far-famed Capital Hotel, till you reach Main Street (where three of the four corners are occupied by Banks). Turning south you pass on this Main Street car a large part of the business of the city. At Fifteenth and Main there is a branch which will take you west to Fifteenth and Chester. The terminus of the Markham Street line is at Twenty-fourth and Main.

The Arch Street line begins at Fifteenth and Arch, and runs out Arch to Twenty-fifth Street, then west on Twenty-fifth to Chester. Passengers are transferred from the Main Street line at Fifteenth and Arch.

The Ninth Street line begins at Fifteenth and Chester, runs west on Fifteenth to High, then north on High to Fourteenth. A branch then runs west six blocks to the West End Park. This Park is at Fourteenth and Park Avenue, and is being prepared by the Street Railway Company as a place of popular resort. From the Park this branch runs south to Sixteenth, its terminus.

But the main line at Fourteenth and High goes north on High to Ninth, then east on Ninth to Main, then north on Main to Markham, east on Markham out to Rector Avenue, south on Rector to Second, and east on Second to McLean, its eastern terminus.

The Chester Street line starts at Fifteenth and Chester, then goes north on Chester to Fifth. Here it divides; one branch going west on Fifth to Cross, then north on Cross to Markham, where it connects with the Main and Markham line, transferring passengers to the Depot.

The other branch at Fifth and Chester goes east on Fifth to Louisiana, north on Louisiana to Third, and east on Third to Rock Street. All the way from Louisiana to Rock Street there is a double track. At Third and Rock the track turns south running out to Seventeenth, then west on Seventeenth to Main—the site of Glenwood Park. At Seventeenth and Main it connects with the Main Street line.

The Electric Street Railway.

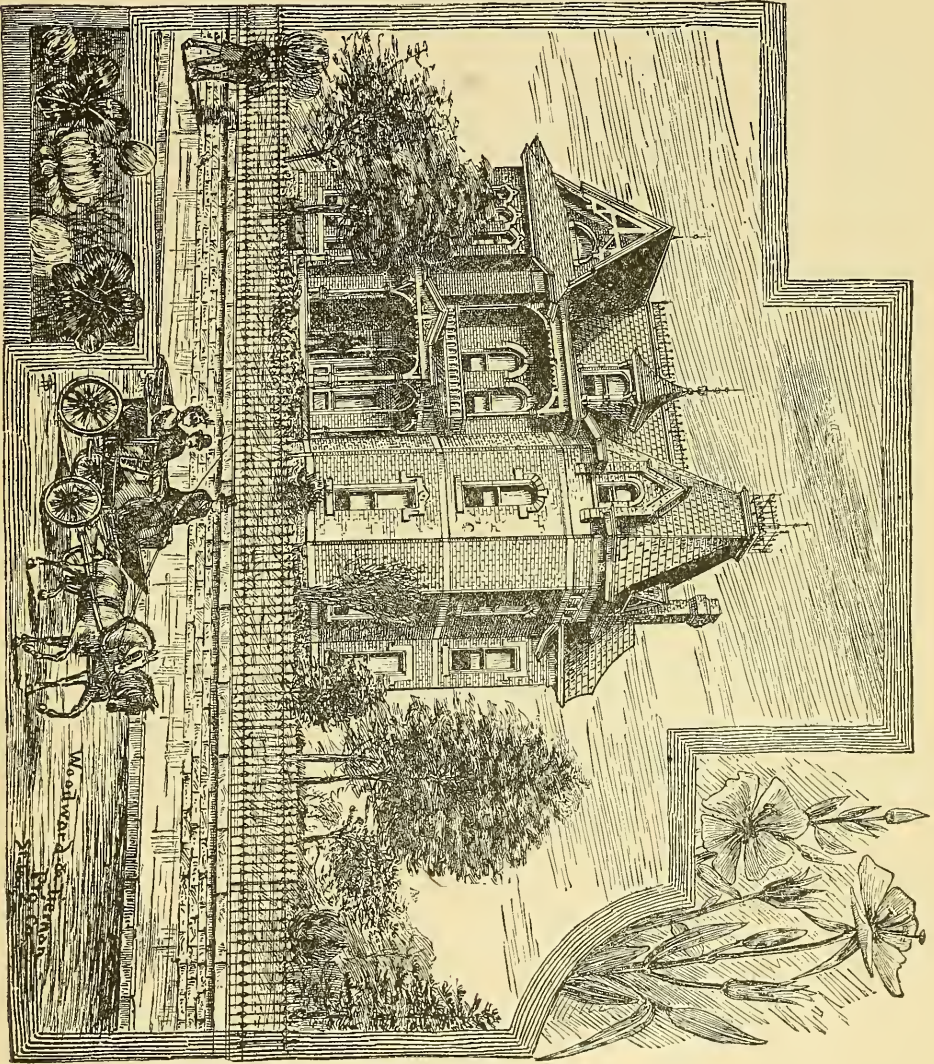

The City Electric Street Railway is already a prominent factor in answering the question—"How shall I reach the various parts of the city?"

It has at present three miles of track, traversing a part of the city that is bound to become more and more popular for residence.

Here is its route.—Beginning on Second and Louisiana, it runs west two blocks, turning south on Spring for two blocks and thus reaching Fourth Street. It then runs west on Fourth nine blocks till it reaches Pulaski. Its course is then south on Pulaski to Eighth, west on Eighth to Wolf, south on Wolf to Eleventh, west on Eleventh to Park Avenue, then south to Thirteenth Street, where it runs west to the terminus. A brisk walk from the end of the Dummy Line will take the visitor to the State Asylum for the Insane, an important institution described in another part of this book.

The entire route of this line is within the city limits, and its general course is in a southwesterly direction. John B. Jones, Esq., has been identified with the road from its inception, and still has a large interest in it. The present line was built in the spring of 1888, having secured, in December, 1887, a charter from the city to use "steam, electric motor, cable, or any other power suitable to propel street cars." The intention is to build at least seven miles within the city, and equip the whole with electric motors, making a complete electric street car system for Little Rock.

Many charming views and handsome residences meet the eye from this line. Population and capital are pushing that way. We understand that the syndicate controlling the Electric Line has a number of choice lots which they have not yet put on the market. Nowhere will investments in real estate pay better.

RESIDENCE OF CAPT. JAMES R. MILLER, LINCOLN AVENUE.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The Public Schools

Of Little Rock will compare favorably with those of any city in the country of equal size. There are now five buildings for white pupils and three for colored, while a very fine new building is in process of erection. In these a large amount of money has been invested. It is estimated that the grounds and sites are worth $90,000; the buildings (including the new edifice) $115,000; the furniture and apparatus $12,000; making a grand total of $217,000 permanently invested in the public school plant.

The Board of School Directors is an able one, as the following well-known names will indicate: Frederick Kramer, President, R. A. Edgerton, Secretary, D. G. Fones, Albert Cohen, J. Elias Rector, H. L. Fletcher.

In the year 1888-9 the total enrollment of white pupils was 2,329; of colored pupils 1,480; total, 3,809. The year just closing will show a considerable increase over these figures. There are fifty-six teachers besides the Superintendent.

The High School department is taught in the Scott Street building, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets. Maj. R. H. Parham, Jr., is the Principal, with a force of seven additional teachers. The Peabody School is on Gaines, between Fourth and Fifth. J. H. Glotfelter is the principal. An excellent cut of the Fort Steele building we present on the opposite page. The principal here is O. F. Russell. Mrs. Viola Leverett presides over the pupils at the Sherman School, between Seventh and Eighth; and Mrs. Mary B. Brooks at the Forest Grove School, at Rector Avenue and Fifth.

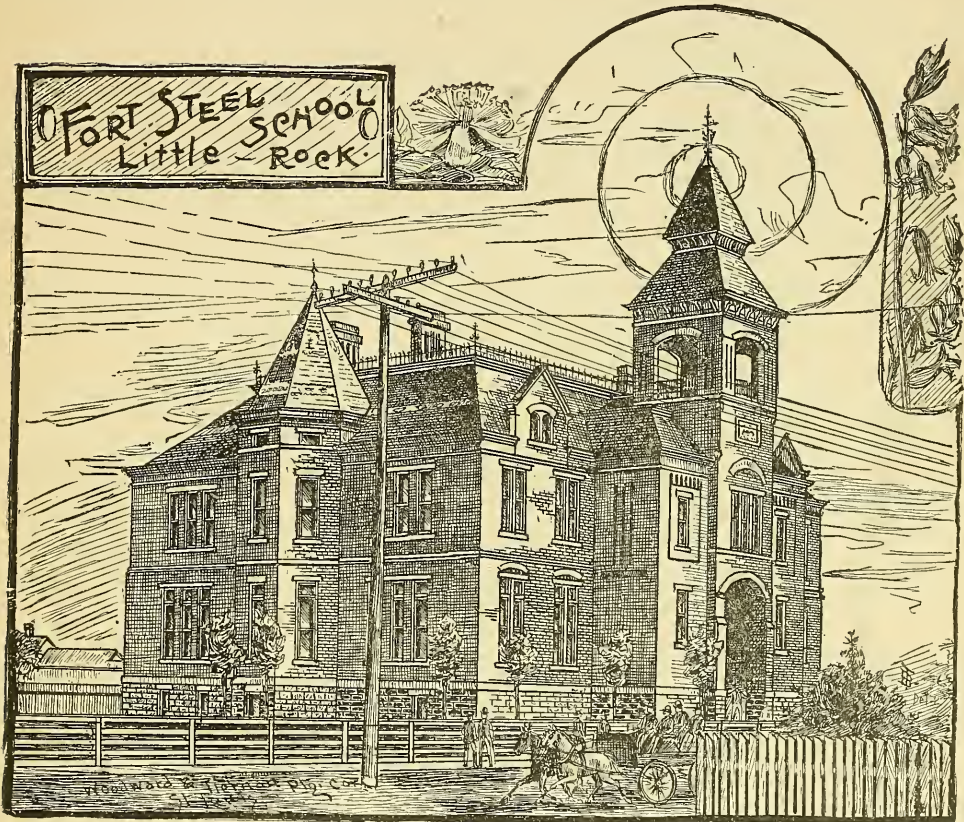

The colored schools are the Union High School, on State between Sixth and Seventh; the Arsenal School, on Sherman between Eighth and Ninth; and the Capital Hill School, at Wolf and West Eleventh.

The Board of Visitors and Examiners for the entire city school system are: Mrs. Logan H. Roots, Mrs. Fay Hempstead, Rev. Dr. M. B. Chapman, Rev. Dr. E. Schrieber, and Dr. J. H. Smith.

It is now twenty years since Prof. J. R. Rightsell, the successful Superintendent of the Public Schools of Little Rock, first entered them. Being elected in 1870 principal of one of the buildings, in less than a year he was elected Superintendent. This position he held till 1875, when he resigned to accept a position in the House of Representatives' Library at Washington. In 1880 he returned to Little Rock, serving as one of the principals three years, when he was again elected Superintendent. Prof Rightsell has thus been officially connected with the public schools of the Capital City for about fifteen years, and is thus by experience fitted to understand and control them. It is no doubt due to him in a large measure that this system has reached its present stage of development. His judgment and energy are leaving their impress upon the schools of the city and the state.

The new Peabody Public School, now in process of erection on Fifth Street between Gaines and State, will be by far the finest piece of public school architure in the state. It will cost about $35,000. It is built according to the most modern plans, and will be an ornament to the city. In our next edition we hope to give our readers a picture of this handsome building.

The Medical College.

This admirable institution, alike creditable to the city and state, is located in its commodious building on West Second Street, near Main. It was organized in June, 1879, as the Medical Department of the Arkansas Industrial University, located at Fayetteville. A full corps of medical professors was elected, and in October, 1879, its first course of lectures was commenced, embodying all the branches usually taught in medical colleges.

creased; and financially the College has proved a success. Its facilities for clinical experience are extraordinary, owing to the fact that the Legislature has granted liberal facilities for obtaining dissecting material. Thus students at a nominal cost possess unusual advantages for pursuing the practical study of Anatomy.

Sixteen professors, each a specialist in his own branch, fill the various chairs, and contribute to the success of the school. At each of the eleven annual sessions a full course of lectures has been given, and to this date 125 students have been graduated. P. O. Hooper, M. D., Superintendent of the Insane Asylum at Little Rock, was the Dean until appointed to his present position. J. A. Dibrell, Jr., M. D., was then elected President and Dean of the Faculty, which position he still holds. R. G. Jennings, M. D., has been the Secretary of the Faculty ever since the College was founded, and to him all matters pertaining to the Department may be addressed. The twelfth annual course of lectures will commence Wednesday, October 1, 1890.

The Commercial College.

One of the most prosperous and progressive institutions of which Little Rock can boast is the Commercial College, located at the corner of Second and Main Streets. The College was established in 1872, and has always had an enviable reputation for doing thoroughly the work it undertakes; and the steadily increasing patronage shows how much it is appreciated.

Always aiming at thoroughness, none but the most competent instructors are employed, and the student is required to master all the details of his work as they occur. The College Business Course includes Bookkeeping, Penmanship, Commercial Law, Business Correspondence, Business Arithmetic, Business Practice, and the Grammar of the English Language. The work in the Business Department is modeled as nearly as possible after a well-regulated counting room. The student does all his work directly under the eye of the teacher, receiving direction and assistance just where he needs them.

In the Short-hand and Type-writing departments the student receives constant drill; being required, as soon as he has attained a knowledge of the theory of the art, to write from dictation selections made from current literature. In type-writing the best machines are used, and rapidity, accuracy and neatness are acquired by constant practice. The Department of Telegraphy is thoroughly equipped and under the care of a practical teacher. The student is taught all the details of the business, so that on completing the course he is ready to take charge of an office.

The Classical Department of the College makes a specialty of the languages and higher mathematics, preparing students for advanced work in the academical departments of our colleges and universities. Visitors are cordially welcomed at all times, and Prof. M. A. Stone, the President, takes pleasure in showing them through the College.

Little Rock University.

This institution is beautifully situated, being the first object that greets the traveler's eye as he alights from the train. Its imposing structure of brick, surrounded by a fine campus, crowns University Hill on Lincoln Avenue, midway between the Depot and the river. By actual measurement the grounds are one hundred feet above the level of the Arkansas River flowing at their base, rendering malaria unknown.

DR. LE ROY BATES,
VICE-PRESIDENT.

Under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church Little Rock University was founded eight years ago through the untiring labors of its first President, Rev. Dr. Geo. W. Gray. In its erection the citizens of the city assisted generously with a donation of about $10,000, the total investment being about $50,000.

The President is Rev. M. L. Curl, D. D., formerly President of Lewis College, Glasgow, Mo. Dr. Le Roy Bates is the Vice-President and Professor of Science; E. T. Brewster, A. M., is Professor of Ancient Languages; and Dr. E. Schreiber, Professor of Modern Languages.

That this institution has been one of the factors in building up the Capital City none can doubt; and its future will be followed with interest by all who wish well to Arkansas. It is here for the benefit of no denomination and no political party, but for the intellectual training of Christian citizens.

Christ Church Academy.

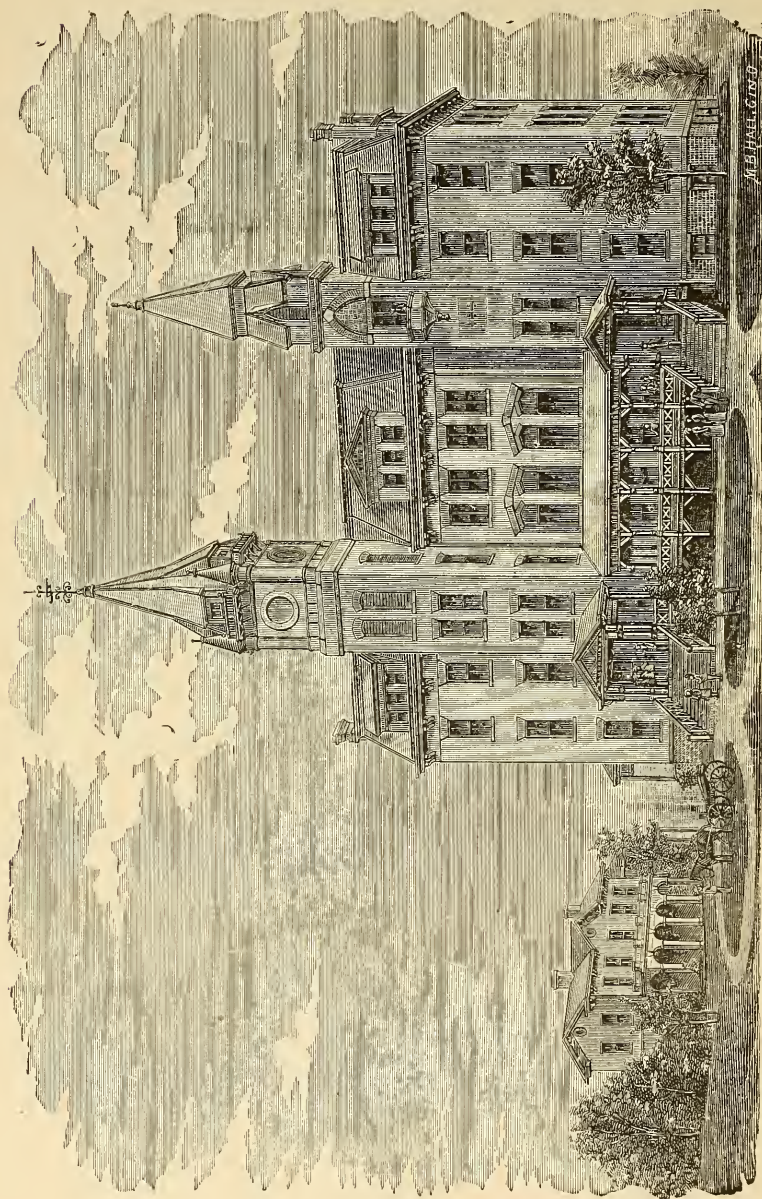

This excellent school for boys is located at the corner of Fifth and Scott streets, in the basement of Christ Church. The school work of the Academy was begun in September, 1889, by the Rev. Mr. Galbraith; and has since been enlarged and strengthened.

The purpose is to build up in Little Rock an academic institution upon the model of the Episcopal High School at Alexandria, Virginia, which Prof. L. M. Blackford has made so famous. That it meets a want is shown by its steady and increasing attendance.

The Faculty consists of: Rev. Wallace Carnahan, Principal; Rev. J. E. H. Galbraith, Teacher of Latin and Greek; and Mr. Palip Saxby, Teacher of English and the Sciences. Here boys are prepared for college or for business. The aim of these successful teachers is to form in the students habits of industry and accuracy that shall make them thorough scholars or intelligent business men.

German Lutheran School.

This school, under the patronage of the German Evangelical Lutheran Church, is in a separate building in the rear of the church, corner of Eighth and Rock. There are two teachers, Prof. L. Himmler being the Master. It was established about fifteen years ago. Some of the branches taught are the English and German languages, Luther's Catechism and Bible History, the common school studies, natural history, singing, piano, organ and violin. The enrollment this year is 72 pupils.

St. Mary's Academy.

CONDUCTED BY THE SISTERS OF MERCY.

This institution was first opened under the auspices of Rt. Rev. Andrew Byrne, first Bishop of Little Rock, in 1851, and hence is the oldest school in the state.

The Academy, situated on Louisiana Street between Sixth and Seventh streets, stands upon rising ground, commanding a fine view of the city. From the observatory a scene of varied beauty presents itself, embracing the whole of Little Rock.

The grounds are extensive, and the yards and garden well kept. Magnificent forest trees shade the playgrounds. A cistern and four spring wells afford an abundant supply of excellent water. The healthfulness of the locality is unsurpassed. The school buildings are of recent date, and are supplied with improved school furniture. They are lighted with gas and have porticos, halls, galleries, chapel, music-room, library and bath-rooms, the whole forming an extensive and well arranged Academy, capable of accommodating a large number of young lady boarders, as well as day pupils. Its charter, obtained in 1860, gives it the rank of a first-class educational institution.

The course of study pursued in the Academic Department is sufficiently varied and comprehensive to require four years of close application to complete. French and German are taught by native teachers. Pupils are instructed in Common Branches, Mathematics, the Sciences, Latin, French, German, and Greek, Vocal and Instrumental Music, Painting, Drawing, Needle-work, Elocution, Type-writing and Phonography, and many other branches.

St. Mary's Academy has enjoyed the feeling which rewards successful labor. During the last two years the attendance has increased from about 250 to over 400 regular pupils. During this school year 56 boarding pupils have been enrolled. The present Mother Superior is a lady of ability and culture, who for many years before entering the Convent held important positions in the public schools of Little Rock.

Arkansas Female College.

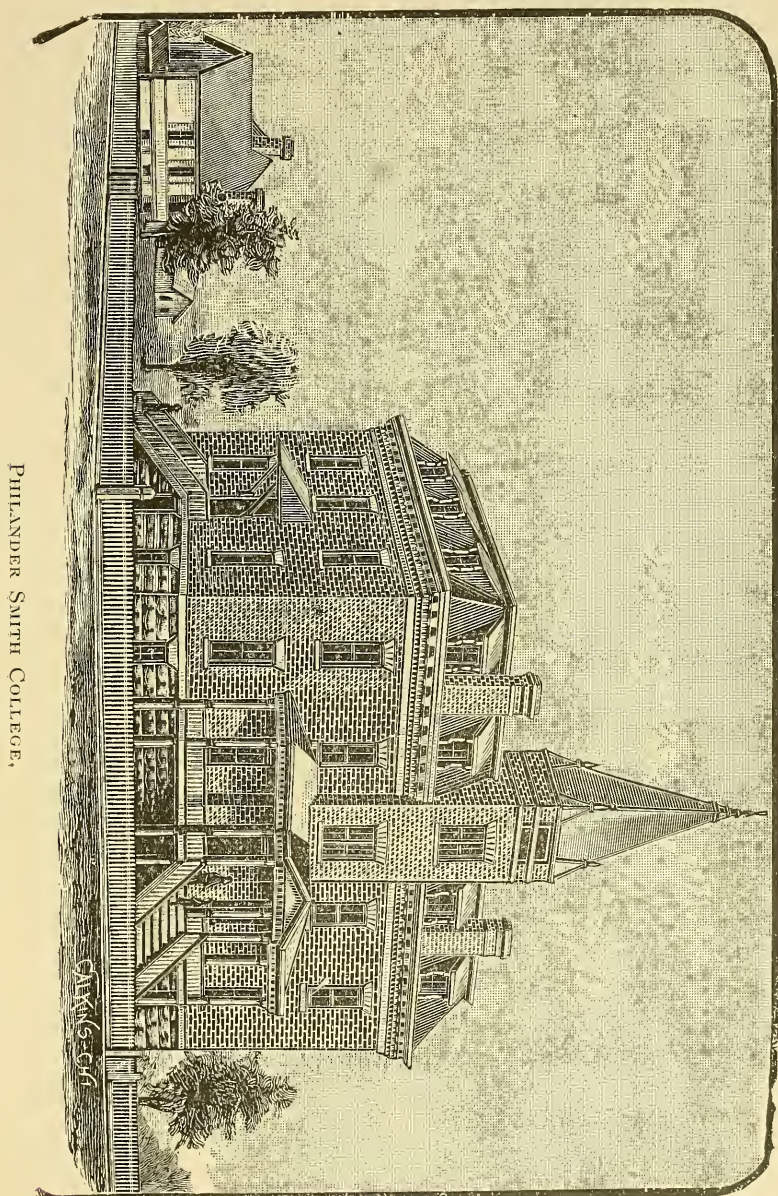

This popular school for young ladies was for a long time located in the commodious building and grounds at 411 East Seventh Street. About a year ago it was removed to its present quarters at the corner of Fourteenth and Rock. It received its charter in 1874. The Principal, who has made the school what it is to-day, is Mrs. Myra C. Warner. There are five teachers in the Literary Department, and the enrollment averages 125 per year.

Philander Smith College.

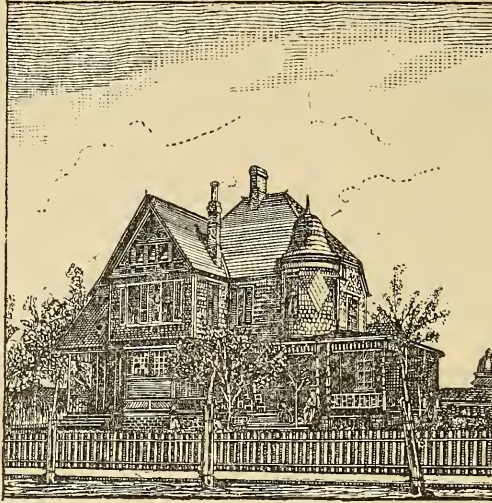

Little Rock has provided amply for the education of her colored citizens. Besides the three public schools before mentioned, there are several private and denominational ones. Prominent among the latter is Philander Smith College.

It was first organized as Walden Seminary in 1877; and in 1883 was chartered under its present name. Its first and only President is the Rev. Thomas Mason, A. M., who is still in charge.

The College is located on elevated ground overlooking a large part of the city, on a healthful site, and in a prohibition ward. The building is a commodious brick, four stories high, at the corner of Eleventh and Izard streets. The funds for its erection were contributed by the heirs of the late Philander Smith, of Illinois, in whose honor the College is named. It was dedicated September 12, 1883. A fine addition to the present building is in process of erection, and is expected to be ready for occupancy at the opening of the fall term. The corner stone of this addition was laid with imposing ceremonies May 14, 1890. Dr. J. C. Hartzell, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, and four bishops of the C. M. E. Church, were among the speakers.

The Department of Manual Training has been recently added, and gives universal satisfaction. In lieu of gymnasium work, carpentry and printing are being taught with the most gratifying results. The good results of manual training are apparent to all who look at the effects. Students graduating for a profession will also be masters of some useful trade, and thus be thrice armed for the battle of life.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Arkansas School for the Blind.

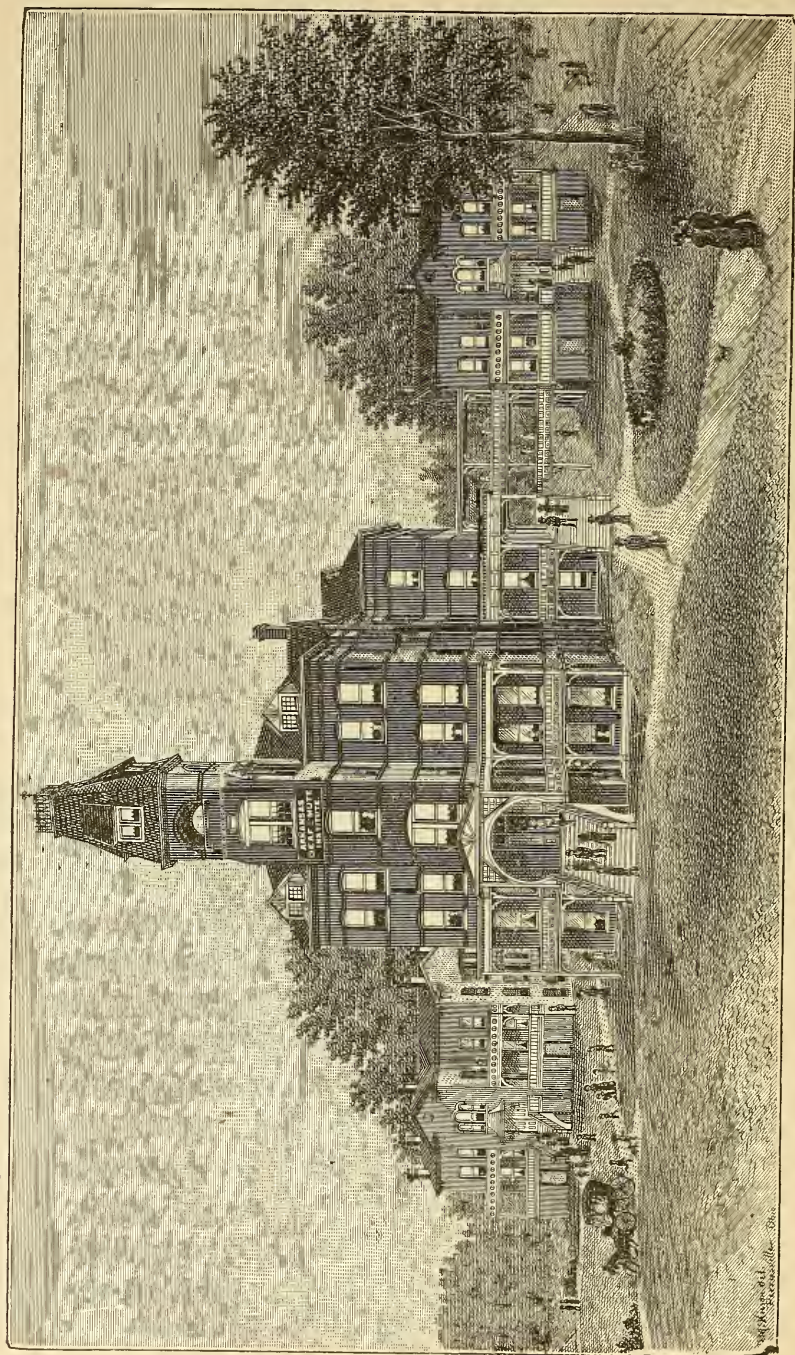

This admirable institution of state charity catches the eye of the stranger at the end of the beautiful vista of Center Street. Let him pursue his southward course till he reaches Eighteenth, and he will be amply rewarded for his labor by the privilege of entering the far-famed School for the Blind.

Its Board of Trustees are: J. R. Rightsell, President; S. N. Marshall, Vice-President; W. C. Ratcliffe, Secretary; J. W. House, D. G. Fones.

In this retreat those who by a decree of nature or by accident have been deprived of sight, partially or wholly, are taught to cultivate their minds and prepare for future usefulness. There are four departments: Literary, Music, Handicraft and Household.

The Superintendent, Rev. Dr. John H. Dye, is evidently the right man in the right place. He was elected to this position November 4, 1886. Since that time the institution has been constantly growing in numbers and efficiency. When his administration began there were only 53 pupils. This year shows an enrollment of 165. Many improvements have been made during this time. Brick walks have been laid, the Mechanical Department for boys has been introduced, as well as a Handicraft Department for girls. A new boiler and engine room have been added, the chapel enlarged, and a proper water and sewerage system put into operation. Electric lights have been placed in the tower, and the grounds generally improved. The whole plant has expanded every way, and is keeping pace with the progress of the state.

To show that the present work at the Blind School is appreciated, we quote the last published report of the Committee on the Male Industrial and Domestic Departments, consisting of Capt. H. S. Taber, J. M. Moore and E. W. Gibb: "Some members of the committee are in the habit of visiting the buildings during the season, and feel this a fitting occasion to mention the uniform tidiness always observed and the regularity and system prevailing the building. One member of the committee for some years familiar with the war department buildings was struck with the near approach in matters of regularity, neatness and system of your buildings to those of the war department, and we feel that the state is to be congratulated upon the progress already made in this noble work of training the blind."

The Deaf Mute Institute.

On a beautiful wooded hill west of the city and facing it, stands the Arkansas Deaf Mute Institute, one of the interesting features of Little Rock. A more charming site could not have been chosen. To the north lies the broad expanse of the river, while to the east can be seen a birdseye view of the Capital City. The grounds are commodious, comprising $92\frac{1}{2}$ acres, and the five handsome buildings seem to answer every demand. In this volume we aim to tell the unvarnished facts, but the truth will sometimes compel us to praise. This noble monument of benevolence is a credit to its officers and the state that appoints them.

Its Directors are: Hon. Geo. E. Dodge, President; Col. S. L. Griffith, Vice-President; Maj. R. H. Parham, Jr., Secretary; Hon. W. E. Woodruff, Treasurer; Maj. Geo. H. Meade, Col. A. R. Witt.

The Principal is Prof. Francis D. Clarke, a trained instructor of the deaf, who has had charge of the Institute nearly five years. Under his able management the attendance has increased from 68 in 1885 to 118 in 1890.

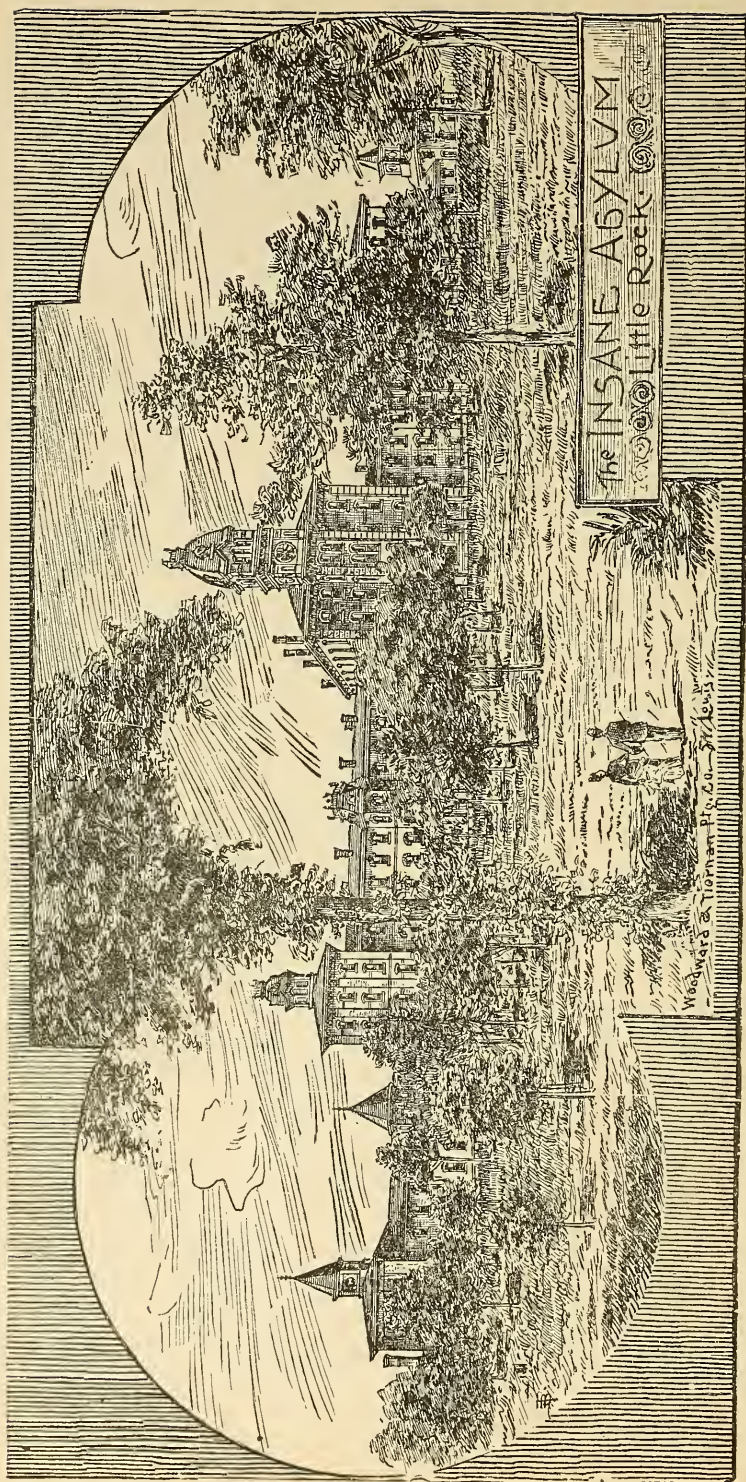

An important point to remember is that this Institute is a free school for the deaf children of Arkansas. No charge is made for tuition, board, lodging, washing, books or anything, except clothing and traveling expenses; and where parents are unable to furnish these they are also provided.

Besides being intellectually instructed, the pupils are given a practical knowledge of useful trades to prepare the graduates to earn their own living. Here are taught dressmaking, farming, gardening, knitting, printing, sewing, shoemaking, wood-carving, photography and clay-modeling. The good that such an institution does can never be computed, and is best appreciated by the children of silence to whom it has given strength and hope.

The Insane Asylum.

A cut of this magnificent institution will be found on the following page. Notice its size, and the imposing character of its architecture. Few states in the Union have made such generous provision for the needs of this unfortunate class as Arkansas.

This institution is located about three miles west of the city, and is nearly reached by the Electric Street Railway. The able Superintendent is Dr. P. O. Hooper. The Board of Trustees: John G. Fletcher, President; S. H. Buchanan, Secretary; A. L. Breysacher, M. D., W. J. Little, R. K. Walker, and Maj. John D. Adams.

The visitor at Little Rock would do well to spend a few hours at the Insane Asylum. It is quite accessible, and the ride out is through a delightful suburban part of the city. The buildings and grounds are kept in the best order, and visitors are made welcome.

The Penitentiary

Is located at the western end of Fourth Street. The state officers in charge are: John Carroll, Inspector; C. M. Cantrell, Warden; Hugh Dunlap, Assistant Warden. The lessee is the Arkansas Industrial Company: James R. Miller, President; W. H. Wright, Vice-President; A. N. Johnson, Secretary and Treasurer. The total number of prisoners in May, 1890, was 806; of whom 675 were state convicts and 131 U. S. prisoners. Of these 312 were white, 467 colored, and 29 Indians.

The State Library.

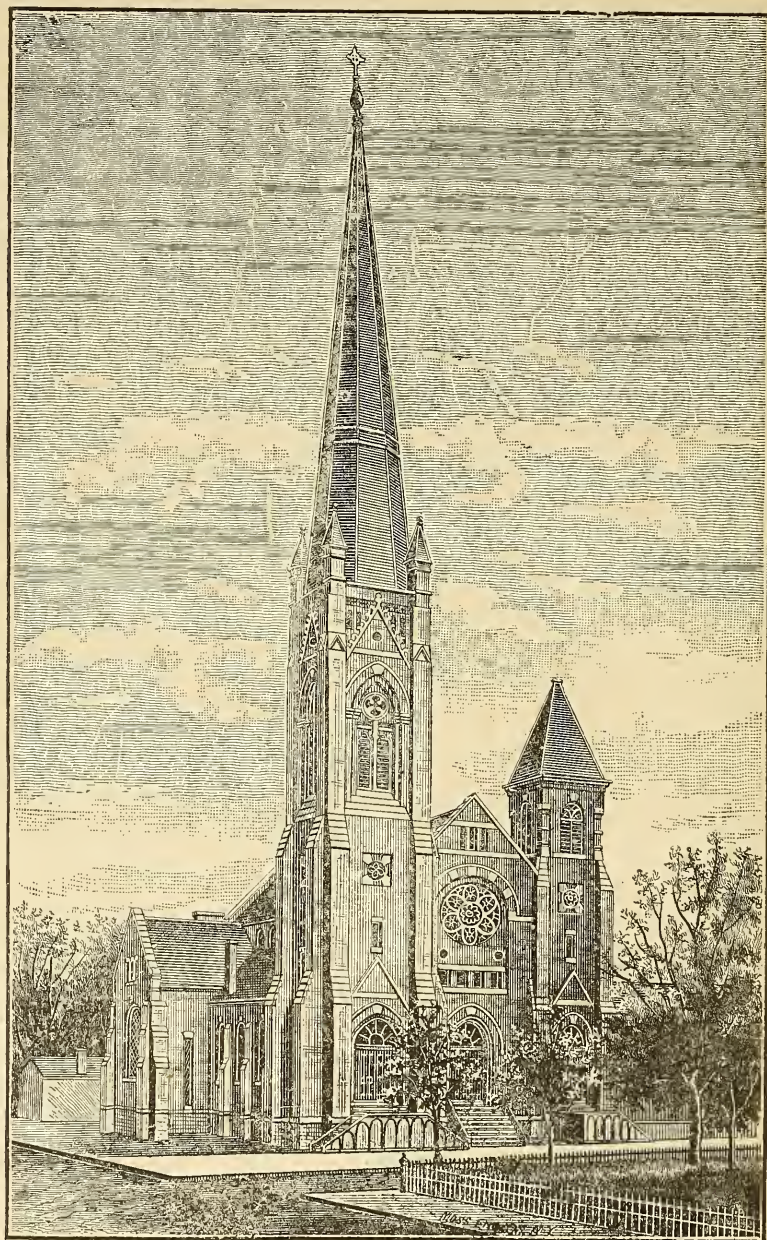

This library, the largest in the state, is in the State House. It contains over 20,000 volumes. The Secretary of State, Hon. B. B. Chism, is ex-officio librarian, and is also the custodian of the standard weights and measures furnished by the United States Government.

The State Library occupies several rooms in the front portion of the west wing of the State House, lower floor. It is especially rich in law reports, legislative journals, and congressional records. Most of it is what you might call solid reading; nothing light or trashy is permitted to enter these sacred precincts. The reporter could not find a novel in the entire collection. Evidently our legislators have no taste for such flimsy stuff. A man who hankers after public documents could find reading here for many years.

THE CHURCHES.

We have alluded before to the large number of churches in Little Rock, and to the imposing character of many church buildings. Is it not remarkable that in a city of 40,000 people there are 33 flourishing churches? Yet that is the number—23 white and 10 colored church organizations, with church property valued at $440,000.

This work does not aim to cover the field of the City Directory, and does not propose to give the names and statistics of every church. We simply desire to furnish sketches of some of the prominent ones, with views of their exteriors, as samples to our friends and visitors of what we have.

"So much we give, but more remain behind."

Protestant Episcopal.

There are two Episcopalian churches in Little Rock.

CHRIST CHURCH, on the southeast corner of Fifth and Scott streets, is one of the leading churches in the city.

The parish was organized by Bishop Polk in 1838, so that it is one of the oldest in Little Rock. One church edifice was destroyed by fire. The present beautiful building, of which we present an engraving, was opened for service, Easter, 1887. The value of this building is estimated at $60,000; the rectory is worth $8,500, and the mission chapel $1,500; making the total value of the church property $70,000.

The popular Rector is Rev. Wallace Carnahan; the Assistant Minister, Rev. J. E. H. Galbraith. Maj. John D. Adams is Senior Warden; Dr. W. A. Cantrell, Junior Warden; Maj. R. H. Parham, Secretary; and Capt. S. B. Adams, Treasurer. Number of communicants, 612; of Sunday school pupils, 400. The congregation is one of wealth and refinement.

TRINITY CATHEDRAL is on the northeast corner of Spring and Seventeenth, in the southern part of the city. Rev. C. H. Proctor, D. D., is the Dean; and the Rt. Rev. Bishop H. N. Pierce is connected with this church. The building has for some time been in process of erection, and is not yet finished. The Cathedral is noted for the high quality of its music. Their pipe organ and organist are perhaps unequalled in the city.

Hebrew.

THE B'NAI ISRAEL TEMPLE is at 204 Center Street. Rev. Dr. E. Schreiber is the Rabbi. The congregation is one of culture and refinement, holding liberal views. The services are largely in English. About 120 families are connected with this synagogue, and the Sunday school has about 100 pupils. The services are on Friday evening and Saturday morning. The temple was built about twenty years ago.

Christian.

This church is located on Tenth and Louisiana. The society was originally formed in 1845, but the present building was finished in 1887. The audience room is arranged on the modern plan with circular pews on a sloping floor, and seats 400. Upstairs there is a lecture room and pastor's study. The parsonage is south of the church, fronting on Louisiana. The church and grounds cost $10,000. There are 205 members on the roll. The present pastor,

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH OF LITTLE ROCK was organized in December, 1889, and has about 45 members. They occupy at present the church building on Ninth and Louisiana, formerly used by the First Baptist society. The Sunday school superintendent is H. F. Roberts; the Secretary, R. W. Irvin.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, T. J. SHELTON, PASTOR.

Roman Catholic.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHEDRAL is an imposing edifice of stone on the northeast corner of Seventh and Louisiana, opposite the Convent. It was opened about 1881. As its name implies, it is the cathedral of this diocese, of which the Rt. Rev. Edward Fitzgerald is Bishop.

ST. ANDREW'S CATHEDRAL, SEVENTH AND LOUISIANA STREETS.

The pastor is Rev. P. F. O'Reilly, who is assisted by Father M. McGill. The congregation numbers about 1,500. The actual cost of the cathedral was about $60,000; but elsewhere and under other circumstances it would have probably cost $100,000. The music, which is particularly fine, is under the direction of Mrs. Heerwagen.

ST. EDWARD'S GERMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH is at 610 East Ninth Street, between Sherman and Ferry, and opposite the Arsenal grounds. About one hundred families are connected with this church. The parochial school numbers about fifty pupils. The pastor is Rev. Father Benedict Brunet.

Lutheran.

THE GERMAN EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH, at the corner of Eighth and Rock, is one of the finest structures in the city. It was founded in 1868 and rebuilt in 1887. Rev. J. W. Miller has been pastor since June, 1889. This church has a membership of 382 and a congregation of about 600. The vestry consists of: Geo. Reichardt, President; Jno. E. Geyer, Secretary; Conrad Stein, Geo. Ermentraut, Otto Lanko, Friedrich Spott and Hans Hansen.

Baptist.

There are two flourishing Baptist churches.

THE FIRST BAPTIST society worshipped for a long time near the corner of Ninth and Louisiana. But recently they have erected a church edifice on the southeast corner of Twelfth and Louisiana, which is a credit both to Little Rock and to the enterprising congregation that built it.

It is near the center of the city, and accessible by several street car lines. It is built in the Romanesque style of architecture; the material, brick, with blue granite foundation and Alabama stone trimmings. The dimensions are 70x110 feet. The audience room will comfortably seat 550 persons, and the Sunday school room the same number. These large rooms may be easily thrown together. Rev. J. K. Pace is the pastor.

THE SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH is on the corner of Eighth and Louisiana. The society was founded seven years ago. The membership is about 300, and the church property valued at $18,000. The audience room is in amphitheater style.

The deacons are: Jno. J. Roach, A. W. Files, M. F. Locke, E. Craig Jr., L. L. Boone, C. W. Walker, J. H. Reynolds, and C. E. Taylor, clerk. The pastor, Rev. Dr. A. B. Miller, has preached ever since he was seventeen. He has been pastor of this church during the past five years. Col. A. W. Files is superintendent of the Sunday school.

Methodist Episcopal.

MAIN STREET M. E. CHURCH is on the second floor of the Methodist Block, between Fourth and Fifth streets. It was dedicated in 1873. In 1882 the building was enlarged and re-dedicated. There about ninety members in this society. Rev. C. B. Besse, D. D., formerly of Maine, is the pastor. He is considered an able preacher, and is foremost in every work of reform. The stewards are: Cos. Altenberg, W. H. Woodsmall, Henry Rudd, L. T. Gill, Frank Carland, Geo. Springer, Geo. B. McLaughlin and E. T. Brewster.

EBENEZER M. E. CHURCH is on Capital Hill, located on Marshall Street between Twelfth and Thirteenth. The pastor is Rev. G. W. Hood; membership about seventy-five. A flourishing Sunday school, averaging over one hundred in attendance, is superintended by Mrs. N. G. Brown.

Methodist Episcopal, South.

THE FIRST CHURCH of this very influential denomination is the large and handsome brick edifice on the corner of Eighth and Center. The congregation is one of the strongest in the city, both in numbers and influence. Rev. Dr. M. B. Chapman, well known as a pulpit orator, is the pastor.

WINFIELD MEMORIAL CHURCH was recently built. It is the pretty little church at the corner of Fifteenth and Center. The pastor is Rev. R. R. Moore.

ASBURY is at the corner of Tenth and Wolf. Rev. W. A. Steel, pastor.

Presbyterian.

THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH is on the northwest corner of Scott and Fifth streets. The pastor is Rev. T. C. Barret, D. D. The present excellent building was erected in 1869 at a cost of about $20,000. The audience room is very large, seating about 600. The membership is 290. This is one of the oldest Protestant organizations in the city, being founded over fifty years ago. The present is their third house of worship.

THE SECOND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH is a shapely brick edifice on the corner of Fourth and State. Rev. J. R. Howerton is the pastor.

Cumberland Presbyterian.

On a subsequent page we present an excellent cut of this fine church building, located on the corner of Eleventh and Louisiana. It is a massive brick structure, 60x80 feet in dimensions, built several years ago. Rev. W. M. Robinson is pastor, and there are over one hundred members. Mr. D. L. Bourland, well known among church workers as President of the Sunday School County Convention, superintends the large and flourishing Sunday school.

Congregational.

THE PILGRIM CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH is on the corner of Eleventh and Main. It was founded about five years ago. The membership is over one hundred. Rev. D. H. Snowden, D. D., has nearly finished his second year as pastor. Since his coming he has established his reputation as a popular preacher and greatly built up his church. He resides at 1900 Main Street.

PARKS.

Till times quite recent the need of parks in this city for the health and happiness of the citizens was not fully realized. As in many other places, the opportunity of laying off parks when land was cheap was neglected. So now, unfortunately, Little Rock finds her parks all controlled by corporations or private citizens.

But these are coming nobly to the rescue. The old method of charging at the gate has been abandoned, and the only fees now asked by any are for trans-

I WILL NOT INSURE MY LIFE

Until I find a company that will guarantee some definite and reasonable return for payments already made, in case I accidentally neglect a premium or deliberately choose to discontinue the insurance.

The company of which you are in search is

The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co.

And it is also in search of you. The Non-Forfeiture law of Massachusetts applies only to the few companies whose home offices are in that State. By its terms the company named above is compelled to give a definite amount of insurance to a policy-holder who fails to pay the premium for any year after the second, unless he prefers to surrender his policy for a definite amount in cash. The law is strictly automatic and needs no action on the part of the insured to make it apply.

Both cash and paid up values for twenty years to come are stated in each policy. Remember the name:

portation and refreshments. Of course this plan adds to the financial success of the parks and to their popularity with the citizens. We cannot have too many of these cool, refreshing spots, nor can they be made too beautiful. Boom the parks!

Pine Grove.

This charming retreat for hot weather bids fair to be the most popular of all our parks. Under the able management of Mr. Frank Seaman it is now in the full tide of its first season.

But where is Pine Grove?

"Not to know this argues thyself unknown."

That is, if you are a citizen of Little Rock. But for the benefit of the traveling public who want to see the sights of the city, we will state that Pine Grove is a commodious and well equipped park three miles west of town at the end of the Electric Street Railway.

No pains have been spared to make it a delightful resort. The refreshment stands, rustic seats, pagodas, pavilion for dancing and concert purposes, all show the marks of the practical designer. From time to time as the season advances new features will be introduced which will keep Pine Grove in the front rank. The grounds are high and rolling, and the surroundings far preferable to the smaller parks down in the city. Separate grounds have been laid off for white and colored people, with equal accommodations.

A twenty minutes' run on the Electric Line takes one to this popular place, and no visitor to Little Rock should fail to "take in" the Electric Line and Pine Grove.

Glenwood Park

Is owned by the Capital Street Railway. Being on Main, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, it is quite accessible. The Main Street cars pass every few minutes. As we write great improvements are going on in this park. An opera hall, lighted by electricity, has been built, which is open at the sides and surrounded by a piazza.

Pagodas, refreshment stands, rustic seats, and all the usual necessities for summer enjoyment are provided. Glenwood Park is destined to be a success, as the catering for the hungry and thirsty multitude is in the hands of Mr. M. S. Peckham, proprietor of the already famous GEM CAFE, located at 509 Main Street. For us to praise an institution so well known would be superfluous. If you want to pass a cool evening during the hot months, take the car for Glenwood Park and put your trust in Mr. Peckham.

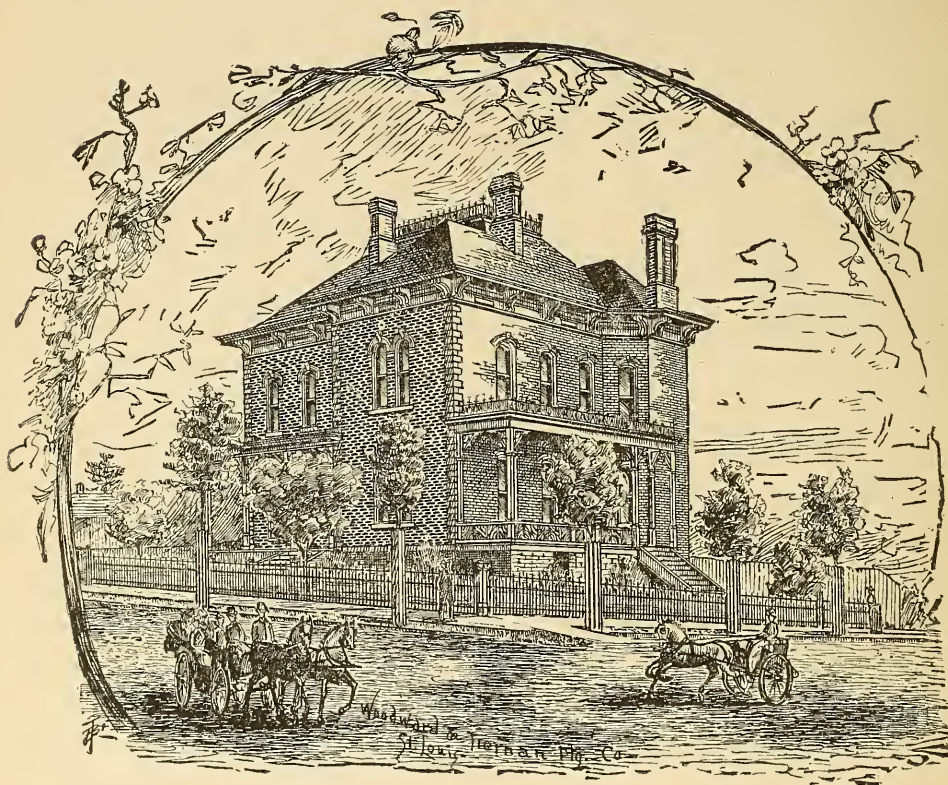

West End Park

Is at the terminus of a branch of the Ninth Street car line—Fourteenth and Park Avenue. It is well shaded and beautifully rolling. It is also commodious, covering about six blocks. A good well supplies abundant water. There are refreshment stands, a large covered dancing platform, a small artificial lake for boating, and a track for bicycle races with an amphitheater for viewing the same. West End Park should be bought by the city, and made a permanent breathing place for the citizens of Little Rock.

Base Ball Park.

This is located on High Street between Eleventh and Twelfth. The cars of the Capital Street Railway pass the main entrance. The ground is well adapted to the purposes of the game, is furnished with seats arranged in amphitheater style, and is surrounded with a suitable enclosure.

Mountain Park.

To say that this is the most picturesque spot among the beautiful suburbs of Little Rock, may sound like an exaggeration to one who has not "been there." But to no other. Mountain Park has a future before it, which is sure to grow brighter as Little Rock acquires the facilities for transportation of a metropolitan city.

Mountain Park lies on the summit of the famous Big Rock, the lofty elevation on the north side of the river and northwest of the city. It may be reached by driving over Baring Cross Bridge and following the romantic river road. The shorter way is by boat to the foot of Big Rock, whence a winding path leads to the summit.

RESIDENCE OF LOUIS L. MIVELAZ, NINTH AND SCOTT STS.

The Mountain Park Hotel crowns the bluff, fully two hundred feet above the river, and affords an unobstructed view for miles up and down the stream. Westward, thirty miles away, Sugar Loaf Mountain and the peaks of the Maumels jut into the sky; and the Arkansas River, in its serpentine course through the mountain range, runs like a silver thread.

The grounds north of the hotel are an almost level plateau filled with fine forest trees. The entire property consists of 450 acres, including a vineyard of 15,000 vines in a high state of cultivation and an orchard of 2,000 fruit trees. Several fine springs afford an abundance of pure water.

A little to the west a picturesque gorge breaks through the bluff to the river. A little stream tumbles through the gorge, and in its final leap to the river makes a cascade of about thirty feet. So we might go on describing for pages, but the only way to know Mountain Park is to go there in person. It will undoubtedly develop into a popular resort. What it needs is a street car or dummy line from the heart of the city to the summit—"a consummation devoutly to be wished."

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The Government Building.

The large, three-story stone building, surmounted by the colors of the Union, on the north side of Second Street between Center and Spring, is the U. S. Government Building, used as Postoffice and Custom House.

The lower floor is devoted to the Postoffice Department, under the efficient management of Postmaster R. A. Edgerton. Through his kindness we are enabled to present the following information about the Department.

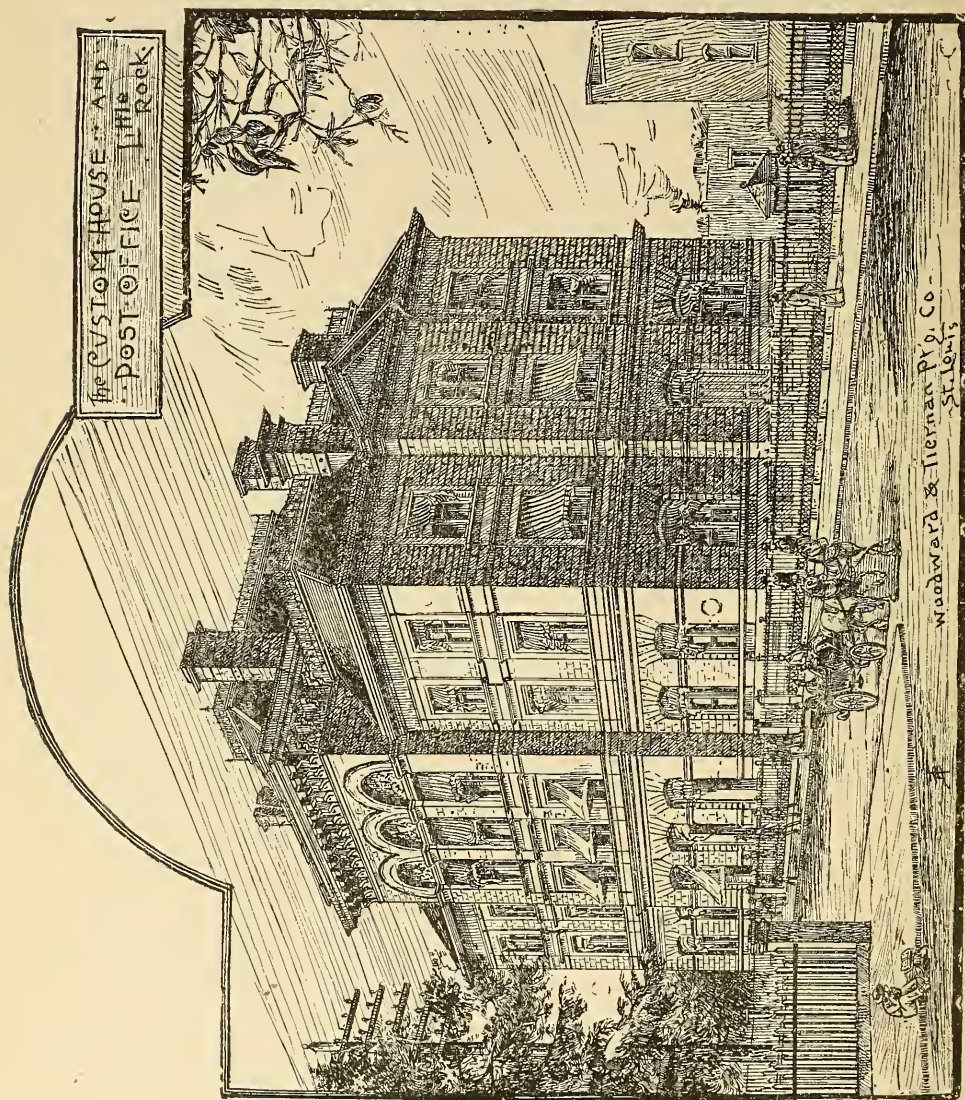

Besides the postmaster the entire force numbers twenty-three. Of these thirteen are clerks and ten are mail carriers. E. B. Knight is assistant postmaster; A. S. Breyman, money order clerk; and G. B. Wright, registry clerk.

The business of the postoffice keeps constantly increasing till it begins to assume gigantic proportions. For instance, the receipts of the money order office for the year ending March 31, 1890, were $1,114,495.23. The receipts of the postal department are kept separate from those of the money order department, and they amounted to $142,624.22. The number of registered packages, letters and pouches handled was 134,996. The number of pieces of mail matter received reaches the astonishing figure—3,645,385; while the people of Little Rock dispatched nearly twice that number.

The second floor is devoted to various government offices. On the north side we find the Collector of Internal Revenue, Col. Henry M. Cooper, with his three deputies and the gauger. The Collector is the custodian of the building.

On the other side of the corridor are the offices of the Land Receiver, Judge M. W. Gibb, and the Register, Patrick Raleigh; also of the U. S. District Attorney, C. C. Waters, and his assistant. Here, too, is to be found the Chief Clerk of the Railway Mail Service, W. L. Cate.

The third floor is largely devoted to the rooms of the U. S. Court, Judges, and Jury. Here also is the office of the U. S. Marshal, Oscar M. Spellman, and of the Clerk of Court, Ralph L. Goodrich.

The State Capitol.

The prettiest thing about the State House is the lovely little park in front of it. It is about one block in length by half as much in depth, and is almost always in beautiful order. A fountain adorns the center; and the walks wind through a profusion of shrubbery, shade trees and bedded flowers. No odious signboard warns the rest-seeker to "keep off the grass!" In this park can be seen an old cannon that once belched the bolts of war in the Brooks and Baxter contest.

The Capitol comprises a main building with two wings. Over the middle arch is a colossal group of three allegorical figures representing Mercy blessing the Law, armed with a sword, and blindfold Justice with her scales. Within the main building we find: on the lower floor the Land Office; up stairs the House of Representatives Hall and the Senate Chamber. In the west wing are: on the first floor the State Library, which has been described elsewhere; and upstairs the offices of the Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney-General.

In the east wing is a very fine display in the rooms devoted to Mines, Manufactures and Agriculture. Commissioner Locke has here on exhibition samples of Arkansas fruits, grains and minerals, which challenge the attention of the world. The rest of this wing is devoted to the supreme judicial department of the state.

Pulaski County Court House.

This, in many respects the finest of Little Rock's public buildings, is on the northwest corner of Second and Spring Streets. The cut gives a good idea of its appearance. The building was finished in 1889 and cost over $100,000. It is built of Little Rock Fourche granite with stone trimmings and slate roof. From the observatory a fine view of the city is obtained.

The interior fully equals the exterior. The arches in the corridors are of polished burnt brick. Iron beams filled in between with concrete take the place of joists. The wood work is of polished ash, oak and gum. On the first floor we find the offices of the County Judge, Hon. Wilbur F. Hill, of whose administration this building is a bright ornament; of Ham. O. Williams, the County Clerk, with his deputy, J. J. Hicks; of the Sheriff, Anderson Mills; and of the Circuit Clerk and Recorder, Wm. W. Field. Do not fail to examine the fire-proof vaults where the county keeps stored away the documents of sixty years.

Upstairs are the court rooms and the offices of the Chancery Judge, D. W. Carroll, the Clerk, S. R. Brown, of Joseph W. Martin, Circuit Judge, and of Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Lea. The basement is devoted to the use of the Assessor, Mr. Calvin Pemberton, the County School Examiner, Maj. R. H. Parham, and the Grand Jury.

Pulaski County may well be proud of her Court House, and no visitor to our city should fail to climb its winding stair.

DRIVES IN THE CITY AND SUBURBS.

There are a number of pretty drives in Little Rock and its suburbs. Let us take it for granted that you have a moderately well-filled purse and plenty of leisure time at your disposal, and that you love to "hold the ribbons" behind some spirited steed. It may be serviceable to allude to a few favorite routes.

Suppose you strike Scott Street near the business part of the city, and drive south. This street, well shaded from end to end, affords the visitor a view of many handsome residences. Leaving the First Presbyterian and Christ Church we pass the residence (shown on a previous page) of Louis L. Mivelaz, the well known caterer, of Col. Logan H. Roots at Tenth and Scott, of Mr. Gus Straus, and many others worthy of mention.

Drive on to Twenty-first and turn east, striking the turnpike. This is a delightful driveway. Follow it past the National Cemetery and the toll-gate, over Fourche Creek and out to Fourche Mountain. Here the quarrymen are taking out the famous Fourche granite, which is being shipped to distant states.

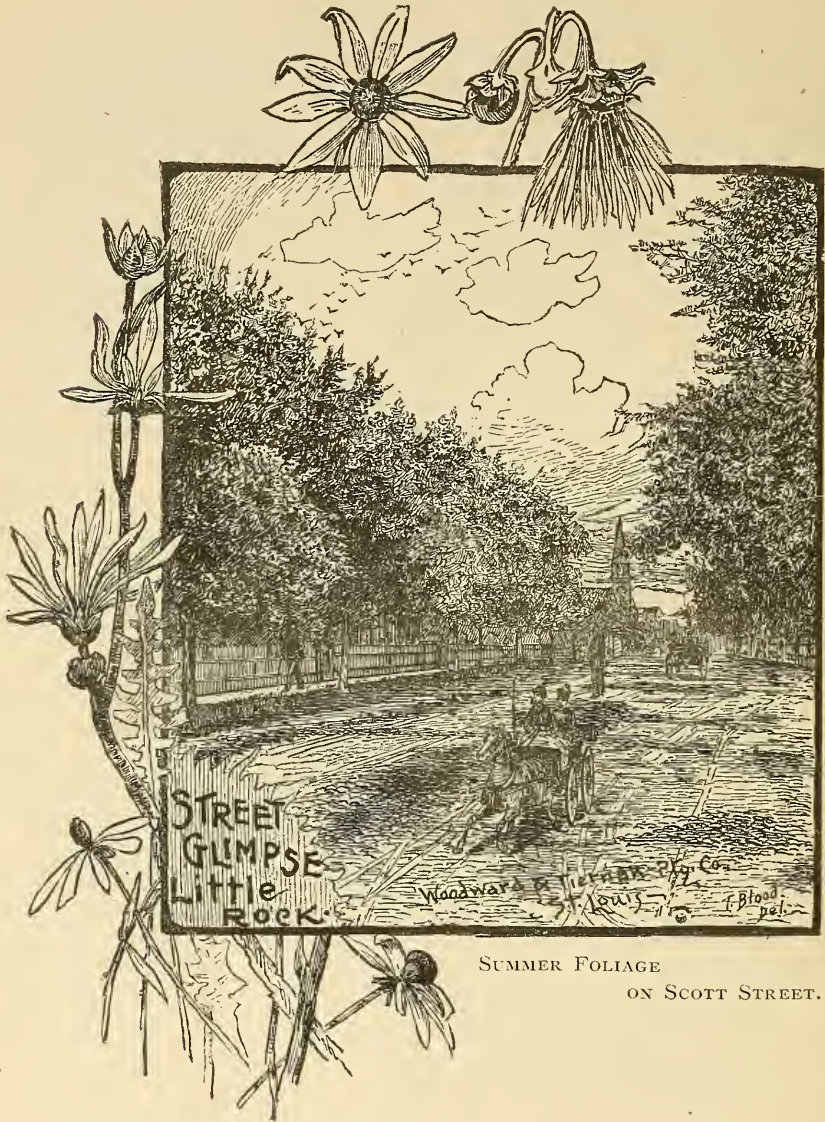

On your return take Main Street; or, if you want to see an abundance of good church architecture, select Louisiana. While in the southern part of town do not fail to see the residence of the late James H. Hornibrook at Twenty-second and Louisiana, and that of Col. John M. Moore at Sixteenth and Center.

Another pleasant drive is out Second Street, past the residence of Mr. W. B. Worthen, the banker, and of Robert W. Worthen, the railroad contractor, to Cross Street and thus over to Lincoln Avenue. This street, though short, is one of the prettiest in the city, passing the residences of Col. J. H. McCarthy, Capt. James R. Miller and Col. Thos. W. Newton, and the buildings and beautiful grounds of the University.

Lingering here a few moments, drive over Baring Cross Bridge, and turn west on the river road. If you follow it this will take you to Big Rock, that picturesque combination described in our article on the Parks.

Another pleasant drive is out Battery Street, in the western part of the city. Follow it south till you strike the old National turnpike leading to Hot Springs. You will pass the Catholic Cemetery, and if you wish to reach a wild rural region drive on about four miles to the "Three Bridges" over the Fourche. It is a capital place for a picnic, and big enough for half the families of town to go at once without disturbing each other.

When driving in the eastern part of the city a good street to choose is Sixth. This will lead you past one of the prettiest places to be found in Arkansas,—the residence of Maj. John D. Adams, President of the Pulaski Gas Light Company. It is impossible in a picture to do full justice to such a place.

SUMMER FOLIAGE
ON SCOTT STREET.

A DAY IN LITTLE ROCK.

If you have but one day to spend in Little Rock—only time to see the outside of the city—take a carriage in the morning and drive out to the old Arsenal Grounds on Ninth Street. Here for a long time the Government had a detachment of U. S. troops. The grounds are beautiful. Thence it will be convenient to go to the cemeteries—Hebrew, Oakland, National and Confederate—which adjoin each other in the southeastern part of the city.

Then take the shortest route to the School for the Blind. A visit to its various departments will well repay you. By this time you will be ready for lunch, after which ceremony, order the driver to convey you to the State Insane Asylum west of the city. It is a pleasant drive out, and the institution is worthy of a visit.

Returning you might stop a few minutes at the Penitentiary, and then conclude your visit to the State Institutions by ascending the wooded height crowned by the Deaf Mute Institute. Return via Lincoln Avenue and Markham Street. Stop for a few minutes at the State Capitol, and do not fail to examine the fine gymnasium and boat house of the Athletic Association.

By this time you will begin to long for your evening meal, but you ought to take time to ascend the tower of the Court House. No prettier sight can be seen, as the sun is setting, than the City of Roses spread out like a map below you, and the burnished river losing itself in the far horizon. After supper, if you incline to amusement, Glenwood Park will claim your attention in summer; and in winter there is usually some attraction at the Capital Theater. After such a round of sight-seeing you will be tired enough to sleep well.

THE PRESS.

The newspapers of Little Rock are undoubtedly a powerful factor in the development, not only of the city but of the State. The quantity of periodicals printed and read here is surprising.

As nearly as we can compute there are at present published in the Capital City four dailies, sixteen weeklies (including the weekly editions of dailies) and six monthly periodicals. For their names and addresses see our Business Directory in this GUIDE. Their influence is great, as everybody reads them. In a handbook of this size it is manifestly impossible to describe them all, so we have selected a few of the leading journals to represent the whole. And first we present

The Arkansas Democrat.

The proprietors of this paper, of which there is a daily and a weekly edition, are Messrs. Mitchell & Bettis.

James Mitchell, commonly known as Professor Mitchell, the editor and senior proprietor of the paper, is a native of Arkansas and was educated in this State. For about eighteen years he was an educator, being at one time Professor of Languages at Cane Hill College and afterwards Professor of History and English Literature in the State University at Fayetteville.

In October, 1876, he became editor of the Arkansas Gazette, resigning this editorship in May, 1878. In connection with the late General Blocker, he purchased the Arkansas Democrat in October, 1878. The General having died in November, 1879, in the following December Mr. Bettis took his place in the business.

J. R. Bettis is of Revolutionary descent, his grandfather having fought at Bunker Hill. In 1871 Mr. Bettis took an interest in the St. Louis Democrat, acting as superintendent. In 1879 he became business manager of the Arkansas

Democrat, and in 1881 purchased an interest. Mr. Bettis has always been deeply interested in the mechanical department of his calling, and is a frequent writer for typographical journals. He was elected Secretary of the Arkansas Press Association in 1883. In 1886 he was elected Vice-President and in 1887 President. Mr. Bettis has been very prominent in the National Editorial Association, and in 1889 received the distinguished honor of the presidency of that body at San Antonio. Besides the paper, the establishment includes a complete bindery, job, news and stereotyping outfit. One department is a wholesale paper establishment, including all printers' supplies. A remarkable fact in this connection is that this office was mentioned as a model one on the floor of the National Typothetæ, and a diagram with description was asked for.

It has been the intention of the proprietors of this paper to steer clear of the "party organ" idea. While Democratic in politics, it is run in the interest of the people at large. "The greatest good to the greatest number" is what it seeks to bring; and its battle cry is the old Democratic slogan—"Equal rights to all, exclusive privileges to none."

The Arkansas Gazette.

This is one of the oldest newspapers in the United States, and is certainly the oldest paper west of the Mississippi which has been published continuously under the same name. It was established November 20, 1819, by Wm. E. Woodruff, a young printer from Long Island, at Arkansas Post, then the capital of the new Arkansas Territory. Its history is closely linked with that of the State whose name it bears.

On the 4th of June, 1889, the Gazette Publishing Company purchased the paper from Mr. H. G. Allis. Its owners are a stock company composed of prominent business men and Democrats residing in different parts of the State. No member of the company owns over $2,000 worth of stock.

The directors are: Geo. Wm. Caruth, R. A. Little, John D. Adams, Zeb Ward, J. W. House, A. M. Woodruff and John G. Fletcher. The officers of the board of directors are: G. W. Caruth, president; R. A. Little, vice-president; W. M. Kavanaugh, secretary and business manager. The editor, Mr. D. A. Brower, has occupied this position continuously since 1881, except an interval of about seven months.

The Gazette is said to have the most complete newspaper office in the Southwest. Its facilities may be inferred from its perfecting press, with a capacity of 16,000 complete papers per hour. It receives the full Associated Press reports over its own leased wire from Memphis. An evidence of the enterprise of its management is that they employ a special operator at a good salary to receive the Associated Press dispatches and record them with typewriter.

The first edition goes to press at an earlier hour than any other daily in the State, going out to distant railroad points at 2 a. m. During its long career the Gazette has been a consistent exponent of Democratic principles, and leads the party press in the State; but political matter is not given precedence over the news of the day and current events.

The Press Printing Company and Arkansas Press.

It is the opinion of all who give industrial enterprises their study that the Press Printing Company, of Little Rock, is unsurpassed in point of completeness by any printing establishment in any city of the size of Little Rock in the United States. The president of the company, Mr. George R. Brown, is a practical printer and experienced newspaper man, whose life has been passed amid the clicking of type and the rumble of printing presses.

The new home of the company, the beautiful and costly Press Building, on West Second Street, is by far the handsomest newspaper block in the State, and with new and improved machinery the proprietors announce themselves ready and anxious to meet Memphis, St. Louis and other competitive cities. This concern handles all branches of the business—newspaper work, job printing, book and the public. Secretary Charles H. Kennedy is known far and wide as one of the pushing and painstaking rustlers of the Press. He is an enthusiast in the business, and numbers his friends by the score. awake and successful business men, and there is no telling how big this business may become.

Closely allied with the company is that sterling worker for the glory and up-building of Arkansas—The Press, Geo. R. Brown and Charles H. Lewis, proprietors. This paper, whose merit is recognized all over the State, has a circulation second to no other publication in Arkansas.

The Arkansas State Register.

This is one of our younger papers, dating only from August 7, 1889. Office, 203 East Markham. It is owned by a wealthy stock company, of which Col. Henry M. Cooper is president, H. P. Johnson, secretary, and A. S. Fowler, treasurer. The editor, J. M. Johnston, is comparatively young, though a veteran journalist. His fearless spirit and spicy editorials have attracted attention to the paper.

The news departments are quite full, including the entire Associated Press reports and the markets. The daily is printed every morning at 4 o'clock, and is found at the various news stands, and on all railroad trains in the State. The management claim that the Weekly Register has a larger circulation than any other weekly issued in the State from a daily office. Every county in the State receives the Weekly Register.

This paper represents the Republican party of Arkansas. It believes in letting by-gones be by-gones, and avoiding personalities takes up the fight for the equality of all men before the law. There is certainly room for a strong Republican daily at Little Rock, and the success of The Register is creditable to its management.

The Evening Post.

This is the latest addition to the press of Little Rock, the company having been organized May 10, 1890, and the first paper issued May 24. Office, 317 West Markham. The directors are: E. B. Moore, A. P. Berry, E. H. Plummer and John B. Jones. The officers of the company: E. B. Moore, president; O. C. Ludwig, secretary and treasurer; A. P. Berry, managing editor.

The issues are daily and weekly. For its age its circulation is excellent, reaching nearly one thousand copies daily. Its policy is Democratic in the true sense, as it proposes to subserve the interests of the masses of the people. It is an advocate of pure Democratic principles, believing that when embodied in public sentiment and legislation they will lead to the general advancement of the city and the State.

The Arkansas Methodist,

The leading religious journal in the State, is now in its ninth year. Its motto declares that it is "devoted to the interests of the M. E. Church, South, in Arkansas."

NO. 119 EAST THIRD STREET.

Its constituency embraces three Annual Conferences with nearly 300 traveling and 700 local preachers, and about 70,000 members. With such a following one is not surprised to learn that the circulation of The Arkansas Methodist, which is steadily increasing, has averaged for two years the certified number of 10,500 copies.

The proprietors are Messrs. Bennett & Thornburgh; Rev. Z. T. Bennett the editor, and Hon. George Thornburgh business manager. Office, 101 and 103 Allis Building, opposite State Capitol.

The Arkansas Baptist.

This enterprising religious journal, the organ of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, was founded in 1880. Its proprietors are W. A. and Allen W. Clark; and its editor, W. A. Clark, D. D., a prominent Baptist divine. Dr. Clark was the first upon whom the State University at Fayetteville conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He has lived in the State about fifteen years; and in the capacity of State Evangelist of the Baptist State Convention, has held meetings in every county.

The business manager, Mr. Allen W. Clark, though still a young man, had previous experience in journalism. He was the editor of the Chico Chronicle-Record, one of the oldest papers on the Pacific coast, during the Cleveland-Harrison campaign, and kept it consistently Democratic. Under the present management the circulation has grown rapidly. During the past year the sworn circulation has averaged 7,200 copies per week. It covers the State and has a general circulation throughout the Southwest.

The special correspondence is noteworthy. The Washington correspondent is Rev. Dr. Scott F. Hershey; New York, Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts; Rome, Rev. John F. Eager; Palestine, Rev. Dr. A. J. Holt. In addition to their newspaper a Book House is conducted by the firm, supplied with Baptist and other religious publications. They have published a number of books and pamphlets which are having good sale.

THE ARKANSAS STAATS ZEITUNG is the only German paper published here, and meets the wants of this valuable class of our population.

THE LITTLE ROCK REPUBLICAN is a well known weekly, especially intended for the white members of the Republican party. Its editor, Hon. W. Jasper Blackburn, is one of the veteran journalists of the South.

THE RURAL AND WORKMAN is a journal dear to the hearts of the farmers of Arkansas, edited by Hon. S. H. Nowlin.

THE WOMAN'S CHRONICLE is the only woman's paper in the State, founded in 1888 by Miss Kate Cuninghame, who still edits it with vigor and ability.

FOREST AND FARM is another agricultural paper, edited by Prof. W. S. Thomas, the scientist of the Iron Mountain Land Department.

THE SOUTHERN SCHOOL JOURNAL is edited by the prominent teacher, Prof. Josiah H. Shinn.

Besides the two religious papers before mentioned there are two others, the Anglo-Saxon Churchman and the Christian. Rev. Wallace Carnahan edits the former without fear or favor, and T. J. Shelton the latter.

Lack of space forbids us to characterize in proportion to their merit many other weekly and monthly journals published in Little Rock. The interests of the deaf mutes are looked after in the Deaf Mute Optic and of the blind in the paper published by pupils of the School for the Blind, Our Reporter. The Knights of Pythias are served by their Pythian Advocate, and the Free Masons by the Masonic Trowel.

The papers published here for the colored people mark the intelligent advance of that race.

COMMERCE AND THE BOARD OF TRADE.

The predecessor of the present able and efficient Board of Trade was the Cotton Exchange, which was organized about 1880. Its president for years was Col. John G. Fletcher, the well-known president of the German National Bank. The Cotton Exchange did much to make Little Rock the important cotton market which it is to-day.

In April, 1886, the Board of Trade was organized with 110 members. Steps were immediately taken to provide an adequate building, and the present handsome structure on the corner of Second and Scott, of which we present an engraving, was begun. It was finished in the following year. In it a beautiful room, 40x50 feet and two stories high, was set apart for the uses of the Exchange. Here through its telegraphic arrangements the merchant is hourly informed of the fluctuation in prices of the world's markets.

The present officers of the Board of Trade are: Jas. A. Fones, President; Sam O. Smith, Vice-President; Geo. R. Brown, Secretary; E. S. Greene, Assistant Secretary; and P. K. Roots, Treasurer.

Its standing committees are as follows.

Membership: R. E. Douglas, T. B. Miller, J. F. Boyle.

Information and Statistics: W. H. Wright, C. T. Walker, W. H. Ragland, G. R. Brown.

Trade: J. G. Fletcher, G. R. McSwine, Ad. Hamberg, P. K. Roots.

Classification and Quotation: A. P. Howel, J. B. Miller, Geo. W. Martin, Jas. Joyce, G. F. Baucum.

Transportation: Geo. R. Brown, C. H. Whittemore, Joseph Wolf, M. G. Hall.

Arbitration: R. E. Douglas, R. Fletcher, A. P. Howel, M. Cooper, W. E. Tobey.

Appeals: Logan H. Roots, Jas. Mitchell, J. S. Pollock, R. B. Gress.

Building and Grounds: G. F. Baucum, J. G. Fletcher, W. E. Tobey, J. B. Miller.

Bonds: J. G. Fletcher, J. S. Pollock, C. T. Walker.

Finance: J. A. Fones, P. K. Roots, Geo. R. Brown, W. H. Wright, G. F. Baucum.

Little Rock has long been a great cotton market, and her fine shipping facilities are bound to give her more and more importance in this line. We append the official statement of cotton receipts and shipments prepared by the Board of Trade for the seasons of 1888-89 and 1889-90.

In the former season the receipts were 76,926, and the shipments 77,027 bales. (The excess of shipments over receipts is explained by the fact that a few unsold bales had remained from the preceding season.) The total sales made in the city were 43,410. The highest price reached that year was 10½ cents; the lowest 9 cents.

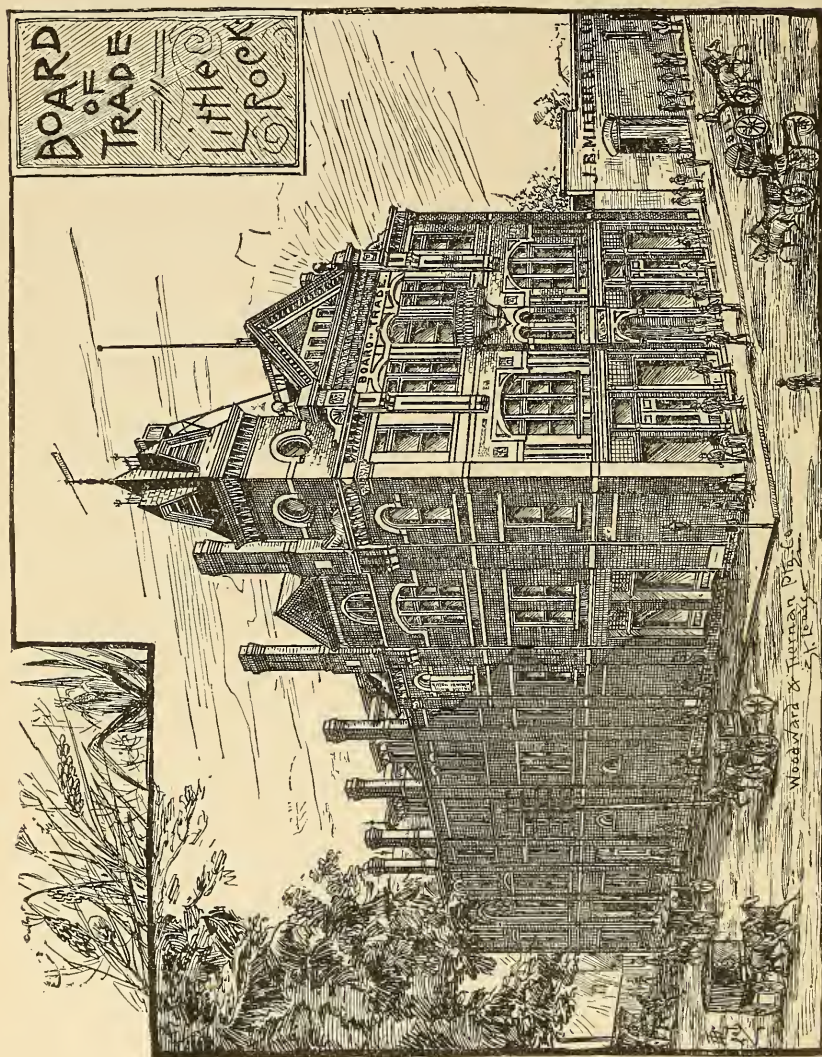

The present season is not quite over, but so few bales are handled in July and August that a very accurate estimate can now be made to cover the interim. Making such an estimate the receipts this season were 70,750 and the shipments 70,233. Sales in the city, 44,486. The very satisfactory price of 11½ cents was the highest reached. The lowest was 9¼. The prospects of a full cotton crop for this year are very flattering.

As an indication of the steady upward lift of business in Little Rock it might be well to compare the banking business of last year with that of this year. Take for instance the month of April, 1889, and compare it with April, 1890. Here is the comparative statement:

German National Bank.....	$4,815,349.30	$5,086,980.71
W. B. Worthen & Co.....	1,023,211.66	1,343,991.07
First National Bank.....	4,766,042.72	4,980,575.32
Exchange National Bank.....	2,939,828.33	3,081,158.25
Bank of Little Rock.....	1,812,345.12	2,290,375.59
Totals.....	$15,356,777.13	$16,783,080.94

Both the city and state governments are in a sound financial condition. According to State Treasurer W. E. Woodruff the entire bonded indebtedness of Arkansas, principal and interest, is $4,749,280.00; and this is being reduced at the rate of about $250,000 per year.

City Clerk H. C. Jones certifies that the entire indebtedness of Little Rock is only $267,004.63; and this, too, is being reduced. During the past fiscal year the receipts of the city were $113,548.41, and the disbursements only $99,374.98, leaving a net balance in the treasurer's hands of $14,173.43.

Little Rock is a wonderful site for future business. The valley of the Arkansas here widens to a broad expanse of agricultural country that cannot be excelled. The hill and mountain country in the western and northwestern parts of the State are especially adapted to the culture of fruits, vegetables and grapes. All this is tributary to Little Rock, for situated at the head of deep water navigation the city has the advantage of other points as to water transportation. Memphis, one hundred and thirty-five miles east, is the nearest commercial rival. To the south there are none nearer than Galveston and New Orleans. During the past year the commercial transactions of the city will probably aggregate twenty-five millions of dollars. The public debt is small and decreasing.

Little Rock has the largest water works system in the Southwest. The two large reservoirs, 200 feet wide by 660 feet long and 20 feet deep, are situated on an elevation 230 feet above the business part of the city. Their capacity is twenty million gallons, affording an abundant supply for a city of 100,000 inhabitants.

Col. John G. Fletcher has for a long time been prominent in the commercial enterprises of Little Rock. He was for years president of the Cotton Exchange, which preceded the present Board of Trade, and has always been among the foremost in advancing the interests of our city. He is a native of what is now Saline County, Arkansas, and came to Pulaski County in early life. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Confederate service, was promoted from time to time, and was with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston when he surrendered. At the battle of Stone River he was severely wounded.

Col. Fletcher has been prominent in the Democratic party, having served six years as mayor of Little Rock, and two years as sheriff of Pulaski County. In 1884 he was a prominent candidate for the nomination for Governor of Arkansas before the Democratic Convention. The Agricultural Wheel of the State nominated him for their candidate for Governor, but loyal to his party he declined to make the race.

Col. Fletcher is president of the German National Bank, president of the Board of Trustees of the Arkansas State Insane Asylum, president of the Arkansas Fire Insurance Company, and of the Home Mutual Building Association.

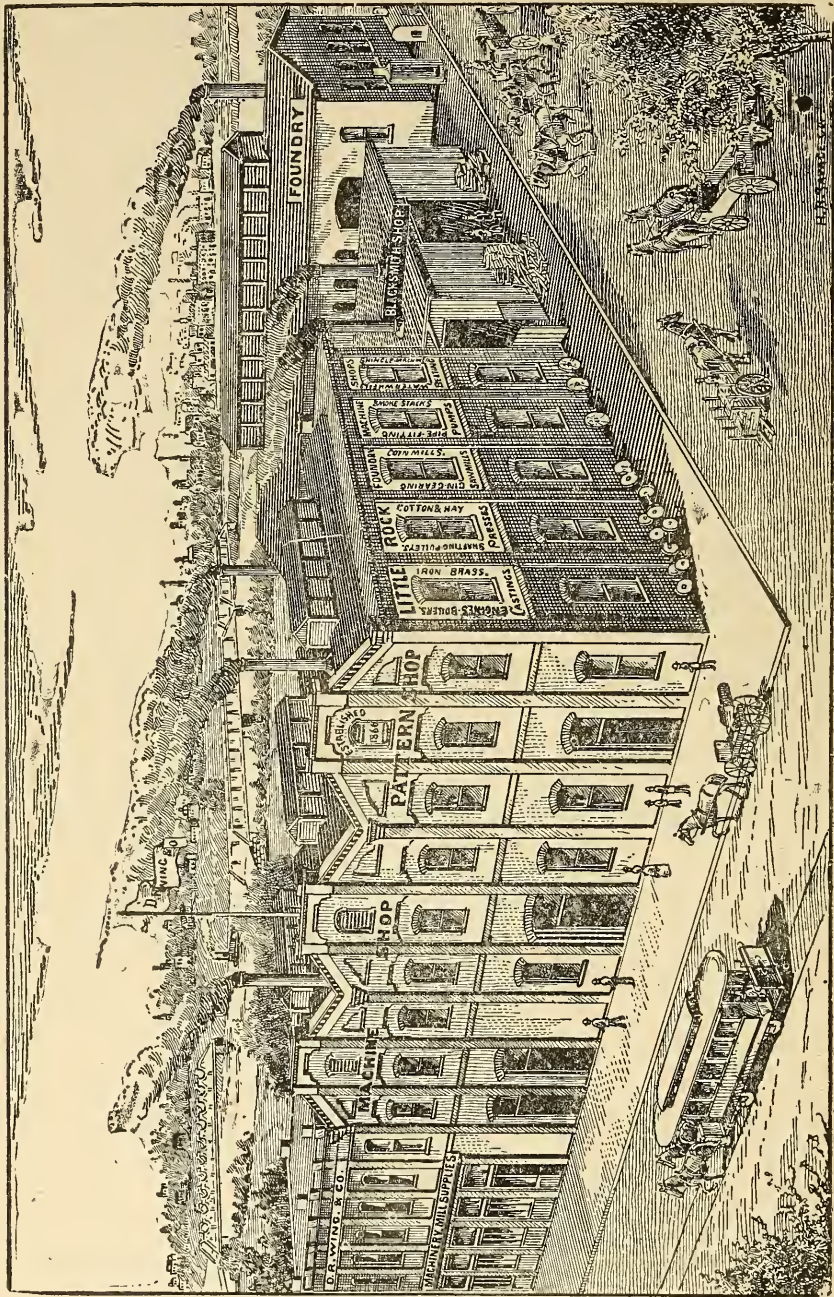

PROMINENT MEN AND BUSINESS HOUSES.

We open this department with a cut of the large foundry and machine shops of D. R. Wing & Co. The artist has given a good idea of their extent and importance. Take the East Markham Street car for their Works.

The Thomas Manufacturing Company, located on East Sixth Street and the Valley Route, cannot be omitted from an account of the manufactures of Little Rock. This company has had a rapid and remarkable growth.

Dr. A. D. Thomas, the patentee, and D. H. Thomas, in the spring of 1886 began manufacturing the Thomas Direct Steam Self-Packing Cotton Press, which had been patented in 1884. They commenced in a tenpin alley on Markham Street, with rented power. Such was their success with the few built that season that in January, 1887, the firm rented the old Eagle foundry, corner of Third and Commerce, with all its tools and fixtures except engine and boiler.

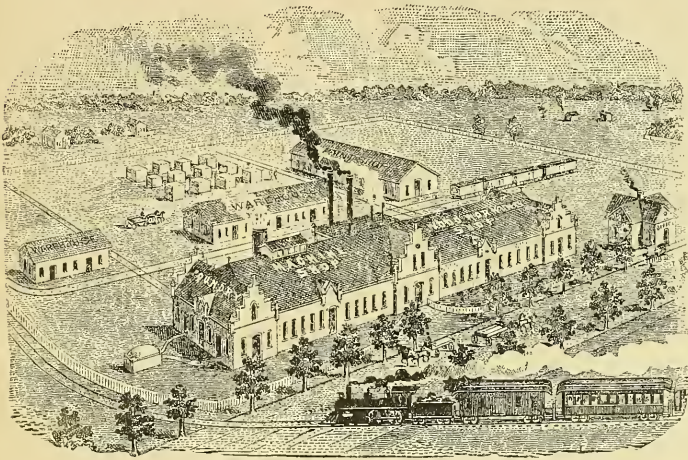

They found in the fall of 1887 that they did not have room enough or tools enough to meet the demands. At this juncture some enterprising business men of the city generously proposed that if the company would select a building site and put up a factory as per designs which it showed, they would donate three acres in the eastern suburbs of Little Rock. Through the liberality of Fred Hanger, Esq., and other enterprising citizens the three acres upon which the works are now located was donated to the company, lacking a few hundred dollars.

On January 1st, 1888, they began to build the works shown in the accompanying picture, having a floor capacity of 13,300 feet, with a wareroom across their switch of 6,000 feet floor room. Their power is furnished by two 9x14

WORKS OF THOMAS MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Atlas Automatic engines and two 30-horse boilers. They have a capacity of two complete cotton presses per day, besides a large amount of custom work. This season they have also begun building another of Dr. Thomas's inventions — a Cotton Elevator, Distributor and Seed Conveyer.

On the first of January, 1890, the company was re-organized as the Thomas Manufacturing Company, with Dr. A. D. Thomas as president, D. H. Thomas secretary and treasurer, and B. L. Williamson vice-president and superintendent of works.

The establishment is reached at present by the East Markham Street car, which comes within about four blocks; but an extension of the track to the works is expected in the near future. If one has a buggy or hack at his disposal, it is but a pleasant drive out to the Thomas Works.

They employ now about 70 hands in the various departments, and have a weekly pay roll of between $700 and $800. Such a distributing power cannot fail to be a great benefit to the city; and if we had a hundred such establishments we should have a city indeed! Their orders have so far exceeded their expectations this season that they contemplate putting on a night force in order to catch up with the demand.

Speaking of manufacturing institutions, one of the largest in the city is that of the Little Rock Cooperage Company, whose works are on the north side of the river, near Baring Cross Bridge. The officers are well-known leaders both in business and political circles. The president, Col. Henry M. Cooper, now U. S.

Revenue Collector, founded the business in 1880. Col. Logan H. Roots is treasurer, and Mr. R. A. Edgerton is secretary. The value of the plant is estimated at $75,000; and in the busy season of the year from 100 to 125 men are employed. The barrels, staves and headings made here are shipped all over the Southwest.

Little Rock is strong in dry goods houses, but it is well known that the F. P. Gray Dry Goods Company holds a unique position among them. The engraving will give the stranger an idea of the exterior appearance of their store at 206 Main Street.

In 1888 the company was organized and began business on one floor at 120 Main Street. But like that of other Little Rock firms, their business grew and grew until in August, 1889, it compelled them to move to their present commodious quarters. Here the entire three floors are devoted to the various departments of their extensive trade.

The board of directors are: Frank P. Gray, president and treasurer; L. L. Boone, secretary and book-keeper; and James A. Gray. A few lines about the officers of this important firm will be of public interest. The president, Mr. Frank P. Gray, has been well known in business circles here for many years. He is the son of a prominent dry goods merchant of Augusta, Georgia, so he comes "to the manner born."

Mr. L. L. Boone has made Little Rock his home for thirty years. Before the organization of the F. P. Gray Dry Goods Company he was for a long time a prominent grocer here. Mr. Boone has been connected with this firm since its organization.

Mr. James A. Gray is a young lawyer of this city, recently admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court. Two years ago he graduated from Georgetown College, D. C., with high honors; and has since applied himself to his chosen profession.

FRANK P. GRAY.

The F. P. Gray Dry Goods Company, while carrying a full line of dry goods, make a specialty of fine dress goods, gents' furnishing goods, and notions of every description. They do not wait till the public demand an article before ordering it, but are audacious and enterprising enough to order ahead of demand what their patrons ought to have. They are not afraid to lose a dollar or two in ordering or closing out stock. It is this element of bright American enterprise that makes them favorites with the public.

People who have once been customers remain so. "True to the core" is a phrase which has grown to be their popular designation. Systematic advertising, fulfilling of promises and a careful study of the requirements of patrons have led the F. P. Gray Dry Goods Company to the place it occupies to-day.

Everybody who knows that Little Rock is in Arkansas has heard of the Fones Brothers Hardware Company, the largest wholesale hardware house in the State.

The business was begun by Mr. D. G. Fones in 1865. Later on Mr. Jas. A. Fones was admitted to the firm under the new name of Fones Brothers.

Several years after another brother, Mr. A. T. Fones, was admitted, who continued with the firm till his death in September, 1881.

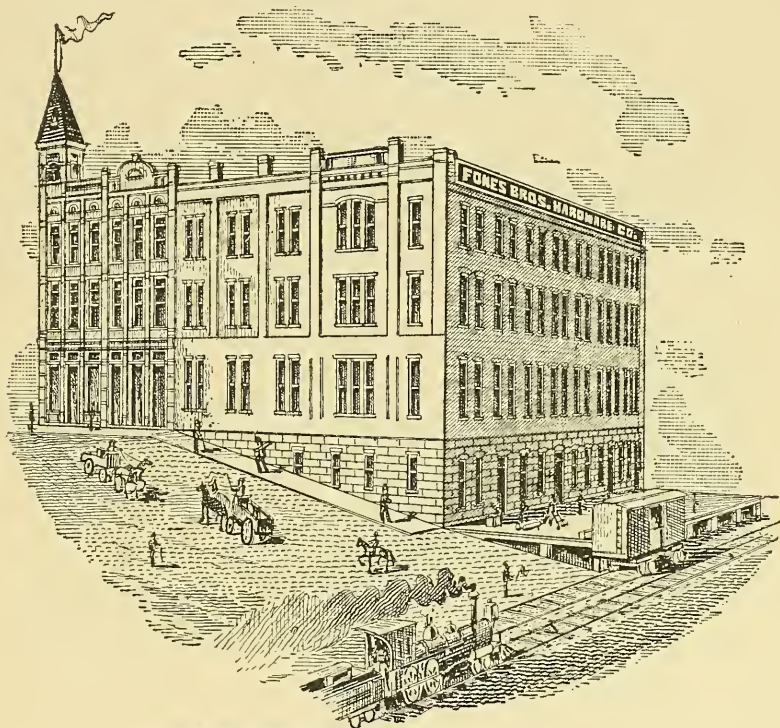

From year to year the business steadily developed. In June, 1888, it was reorganized as a stock company under the name Fones Brothers Hardware Company, with the following officers: D. G. Fones, president and treasurer; J. A. Fones, vice-president; T. T. Johnson, second vice-president; James J. Mandlebaum, secretary. They carry agricultural implements and hardware in all its branches.

The engravings of the two large buildings give an idea of their extent. They have a total floor space of 81,000 square feet. Their building on the corner of Second and Main streets was the first four-story business building erected in the State. The large warehouse at the foot of Main Street, made necessary by their increasing trade, was completed in May, 1890.

Our purpose is to mention in this department only what is representative. The C. J. Lincoln Co., being the wholesale drug house of Arkansas, may be taken to represent the drug trade.

The business was started away back in 1834, when Arkansas was a territory and Little Rock a village. Dodge & Co., of which Mr. Lincoln was a member, succeeded to the business in 1865; and in 1868 the firm name was changed to C. J. Lincoln & Co.

WAREROOMS, FOOT OF MAIN ST.

On March 1st, 1890, they moved into their new building at the foot of Main Street. Here with 10,000 square feet on each of the four floors they have room to meet the demands of their growing trade.

The officers of the company are: C. J. Lincoln, president; C. T. Walker, vice-president; Walter Wittenburg, secretary; W. R. Eckford, treasurer. They carry a stock of over $100,000 worth of goods, and last year sold nearly $300,000 worth. On the different floors are stored the various departments of their stock,—wholesale drugs and druggists' sundries, paints and oils, and a full line of proproprietary medicines, which they put up for the trade. They are the sole proprietors of Brown's Iron Tonic, and control the sale of the famous "Ague Busters."

The Dickinson Hardware Company is no mushroom growth. It began business eleven years ago as W. W. Dickinson & Co. About three years afterward the firm was changed to Dickinson, Pulliam & Co.; and in March, 1889, it was re-organized into a stock company under the present name. During all these years it has been growing, until the company now has a paid up capital of $55,000, with $10,000 surplus, and carries a stock of over $100,000.

THE C. J. LINCOLN COMPANY, WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS.

Three agents are on the road—well posted hardware men—Geo. H. Jordan, J. M. Blair and J. H. Martin. Mr. Jordan has had abundant experience in his chosen field, having traveled ten years for the Witte Hardware Company of St. Louis before representing the Dickinson Hardware Company. Mr. Martin is a member of the company, and for several years was with the A. F. Shapleigh Hardware Company of St. Louis.

Mr. W. W. Dickinson, who originally established the business, and to whose judgment and energy its success is largely due, is the president of the company. Mr. T. J. Darragh, the well known steamboat captain is vice-president.

The cut of their building, on the southwest corner of East Markham and Commerce streets, gives an idea of its size. In this block they have three floors, each 66x120 feet, besides a two-story warehouse on the railroad track, 40x200, where the heavier goods are received and stored.

Besides hardware their stock includes farm implements, corn-mills, belting, machinery, iron roofing, barbed wire, Old Hickory and Studebaker wagons. They are the general state agents for the Skinner engines, Winship gins and presses, the Progress Self Tramping Cotton Press, Buckeye Force Pump and Golden Eagle Cultivator. Some twenty men are employed in the establishment.

We present a nobby little cut of Mr. Ben S. Thalheimer's Mammoth Mule and Horse Market at 309-315 Louisiana Street. Mr. Thalheimer, a veteran in the stock business, needs no introduction to the people of Little Rock. Though a native of Germany, he is an old citizen here, having lived in this city since 1871. He knows his business thoroughly, and can probably give you some points about a horse that you did not know before. Although this is an occupation beset with divers temptations to cheat, defraud and deceive, Ben Thalheimer's reputation is a guaranty of fair dealing at the "Mammoth."

SALE STABLE OF B. S. THALHEIMER, 309-315 LOUISIANA ST.

"Mammoth."

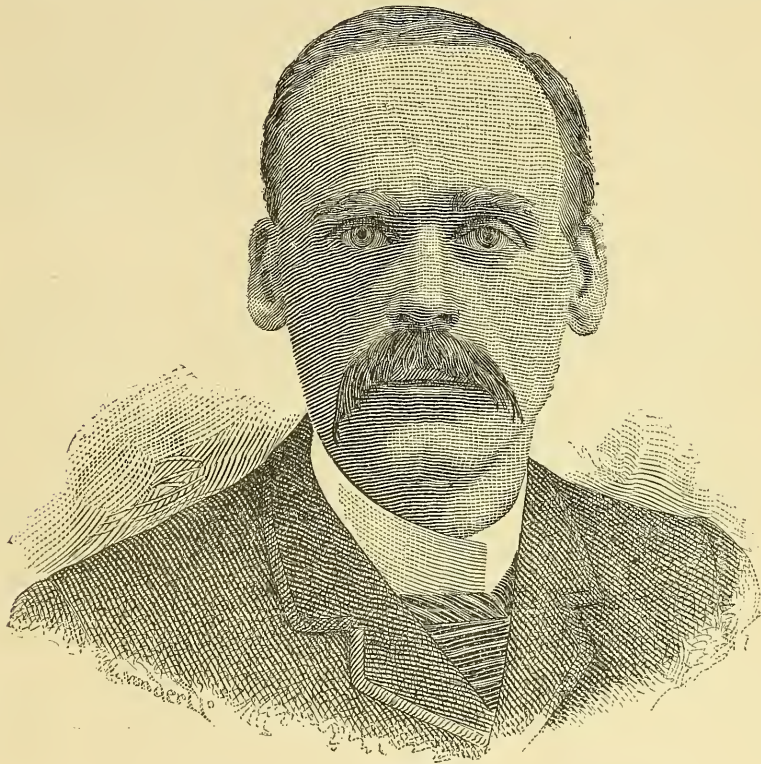

We present a unique and interesting photo-etching, engraved for this work, of the interior of one of Mr. Ed. Coleman's greenhouses at Fourteenth and Wolf streets. Mr. Coleman deserves mention among the prominent business men of Little Rock. Though a native of St. Louis, he has lived in Arkansas most of the time since boyhood. He was educated in the schools of Newport and Providence, Rhode Island, and attended the Business College in Providence.

INTERIOR OF COLEMAN'S GREENHOUSE, FOURTEENTH AND WOLF STREETS.

In 1887 Mr. Coleman became associated with Wm. Smeeton in the floral business under the firm name—Smeeton, Coleman & Co. They started with two small greenhouses. Now, Mr. Coleman, who has succeeded to the business, has eight greenhouses. His establishment at Fourteenth and Wolf covers eight lots, and is reached both by the Ninth and the Fifteenth Street car lines. He makes a specialty of fine roses, and has many planted in the country. The down-town office is at 310 Main Street.

We present Mr. John Lafferty in this department as the representative of the boot and shoe interest. For seven years he has been making people comfortable at 422 Main Street.

Many firms are engaged in supplying the citizens of Little Rock with fuel, and among them the City Fuel Company, whose office is at the foot of Scott Street, is prominent. In coal they make a specialty of the Black Diamond. Their wood trade is extensive and rapidly growing.

The manager, Mr. D. L. Bourland, whose portrait we present, is well known as the builder of the Dardanelle and Russellville R. R., of which road he is still vice-president, manager and largest stockholder.

The former residence of the well known cotton factor, Mr. R. E. Douglas, at 1312 Scott Street, a cut of which we present, is now occupied by the genial secretary of the Davis-Reinman Company, Mr. Gus Straus.

D. L. BOURLAND.

Few among our younger business men are more widely and favorably known than Mr. Straus. Though he has made Little Rock his home but three years, his position in this company, and a taking way he has, have won for him wide acquaintance and hosts of friends.

For many years before coming to Little Rock he was a member of the firm Daniel & Straus, at Lonoke, Arkansas; and while there made his mark as the founder of institutions which keep a vigorous life to this day. As a merchant he has handled stock, lumber and machinery from Memphis to Texas; and his experience and energy are a guaranty of success in his present field.

It is quite fitting that this book, which attempts to show what Little Rock is to-day, should briefly describe some of the men who have made her what she is.

Col. Logan H. Roots is a native of Perry County, Illinois, and graduated from the Illinois State Normal University with the first honors of the class of 1862. He immediately joined the Federal Army and served to the close of the war. After participating as an officer on Gen. Sherman's staff in the grand review at

COL. LOGAN H. ROOTS.

Washington in May, 1865, he came west with Gen. Sherman and was ordered on duty in Arkansas. He was pleased with the State, and has since then made it his home.

He was the youngest member of the Fortieth Congress, was re-elected, and served through the Forty-first Congress, which closed March 3, 1871. Since that time he has devoted his energies to business with signal success.

Few men ever so successfully aided in the management of so many different enterprises. Always recognized as a leader, he has been a controlling spirit in almost every movement with which he has had active connection. He is president of the Arkansas Loan and Trust Company, and largely interested in other enterprises. Among other investments he is believed to be the largest individual land owner in the state. He has great faith in and true loyalty to Arkansas.

The Republican State Convention elected him a delegate to the last National Convention by acclamation; and one of the most intelligent assemblages ever convened in this state, four-fifths of whom were Democrats, unanimously made him president of the Arkansas State Bureau of Immigration. He enjoys the distinction of having served as the chief general grand officer of each Masonic order in Arkansas. But our brief space will not permit our enumeration of a tithe of the honors his fellow citizens have voluntarily bestowed upon him.

Whatever worthy object has needed a helping hand, whether it was charity or enterprise, it has never called upon him in vain. He has been the largest contributor in this state to the promotion of educational, humane and Christian endeavor, and the most liberal assistant to every enterprise for the state's development.

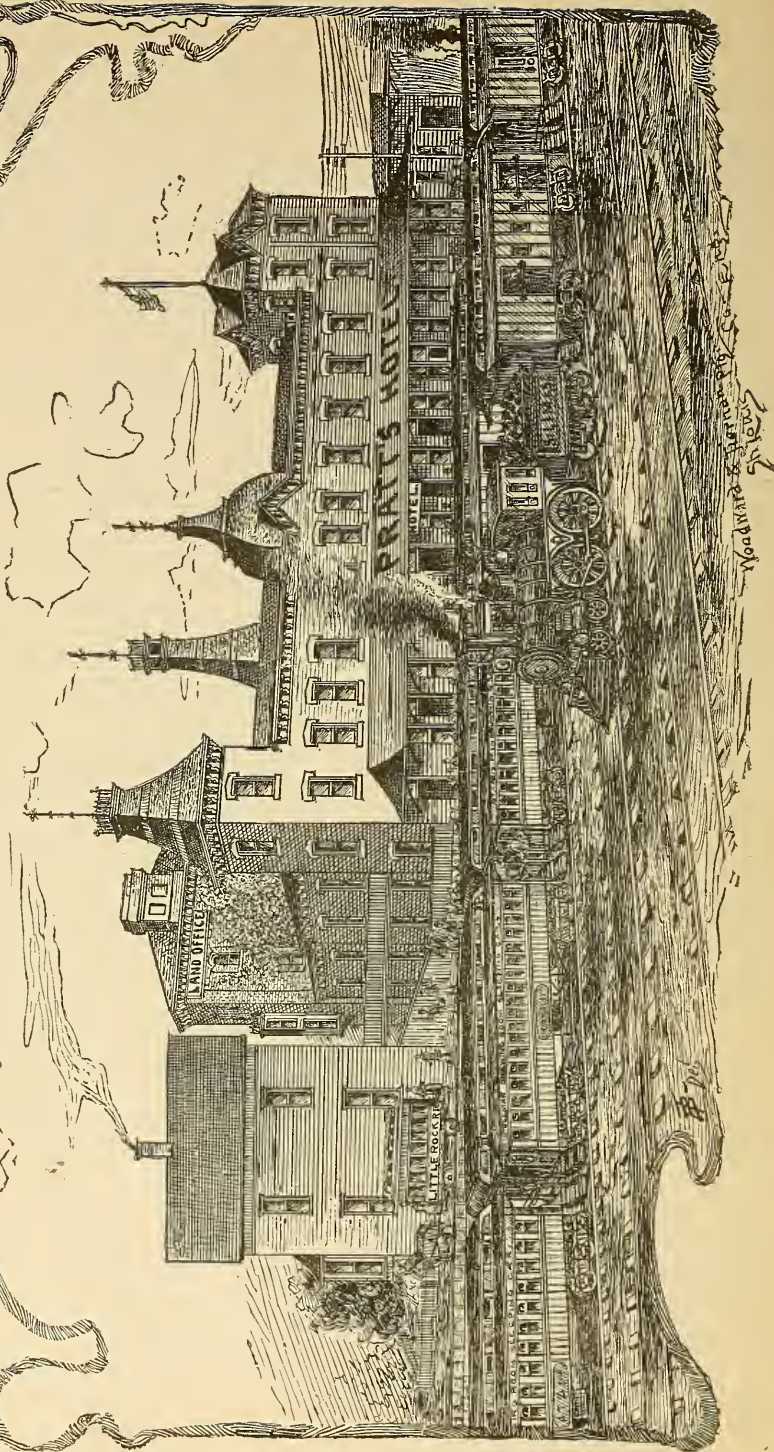

The character of any man is best known by those who come in daily intercourse with him; and when the Colonel recently retired from the presidency of the bank, those who had been his immediate associates unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That in accepting the resignation of Logan H. Roots as president of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark., after his having, with great credit and efficiency, filled that position for about eighteen years, we desire to make public acknowledgment of our high appreciation of his faithfulness and ability. Although engaged in other large enterprises, he has never let them burden, but made them helpful to the bank. He has never accepted benefits from the bank other than those enjoyed in common with the other stockholders. The secured and maintained position of the bank, as the recognized leading bank of the State, its large volume of business being profitably and satisfactorily managed, its being supplied with currency during panics and other times, the unprecedented manner in which the strong support of the bank and himself has judiciously aided and induced the establishment of industries and all other movements for the advancement of the State's prosperity: make a public record that declares louder than words that no person in the State has exhibited greater financial ability than Logan H. Roots.

Resolved, That we are glad that he does not retire from the directory, and are grateful for having enjoyed the pleasure of association with him, and we desire to express our special appreciation of the sterling integrity and lovable character exhibited in Col. Roots' daily life. His intercourse with us has been like that of a kind and courteous brother, and it is a pleasure publicly to declare that in all the years of intimate daily association with him we have never known him in any instance, under any circumstances, to suggest or approve any transaction except such as was within the strictest rule of integrity, mercy, justice and right.

Such a man deserves the success he has achieved. His career is an ennobling inspiration to the rising generation.

LITTLE ROCK
UNION DEPOT.

RAILROADS AND STEAMBOATS.

"One of the Pioneers."

The "Iron Mountain Route" has been the pioneer traffic line in Arkansas, and the development of the State and this system have gone hand in hand. It was in 1853 that it entered the State. At that time the population was about 200,000, and the taxable wealth $19,000,000. The population is now over 1,000,000, and the taxable wealth, as assessed (which has increased over $12,000,000 in the past year) is $127,000,000.

The road, which in 1853 crossed the border of the State and laid its first rail within the boundaries of Arkansas, has advanced its lines steadily, has opened up a large part of the State to settlement, and made possible the breaking of virgin soil on thousands of homesteads. While it was doing that, it has been bringing the grains, cotton, fruits, timber, cattle, iron, copper and other minerals of the State into the markets of the world.

Its thousand miles of well ballasted and equipped road cross the productive uplands, traverse the rich valley bottoms, penetrate the mineral and timber belts, and connect all the commercial centers of the State. The main line, coming down on the east spur of the Ozarks, from St. Louis, enters the State near Corning, in the northeast, and takes a diagonal course to the southwest, passing through the growing towns of Walnut Ridge, Newport and Beebe to LITTLE ROCK, the commercial center of the State, as well as the center of the system for Arkansas.

Here it crosses the Arkansas River, and continues southward to Hot Springs, the famous all-year-round resort and sanitarium of the United States; then to Hope, Prescott and Texarkana, crossing diagonally the whole length of the State from northeast to southwest.

From Fort Smith, the commercial metropolis of the western part of the State, the Little Rock and Fort Smith Division follows the rich Arkansas River valley to Little Rock. Throughout its entire length it passes through the land grant of the road, comprising the richest bottom lands to be found in Arkansas.

The Little Rock, Mississippi River and Texas Division forms a continuation of the Valley Route from Little Rock to Arkansas City on the Mississippi River. Along this route from Fort Smith to Arkansas City are found some of the largest and most productive cotton plantations in Arkansas and in the South.

Another important division, but recently put in operation, is that from Memphis to Bald Knob, its junction point with the main line. This gives a through line from Memphis to Little Rock.

The Helena Branch extends from Knobel on the main line, in the northern part of the State, to Helena on the Mississippi River about midway on its eastern boundary. It forms in connection with the Memphis extension the through line from St. Louis to that point, and penetrates some grand timber country. Numerous smaller branches act as feeders to the larger divisions.

The interests of the State of Arkansas and the Iron Mountain Route are identical. All the commercial points are linked by its lines; and the resources of the State have so far been largely developed through its aid. New branches are being planned and constructed which will open up boundless opportunities for investment and home making.

The Short Line Between Memphis and Little Rock.

It is quite unnecessary to state that this is the Little Rock and Memphis R. R., whose length is 135 miles. The first forty miles out from Memphis is through heavily timbered bottom land. Passing west from Forest City to Galloway, ten miles from Little Rock, the road runs through prairie land, esteemed the best for hay in the State. The western end of this line passes through fine cotton plantations.

It crosses the White, Cache and Black Rivers—all noted for good fishing. The lakes near Quigley afford the best bass fishing in Arkansas. At Forest City this road connects with the Iron Mountain, and at Brinkley with the Cotton Belt running south to Texas. So closely allied are the Little Rock and Memphis and the St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas R. R.'s that passengers traveling via this route can go through to almost any point in Texas without change of cars. This company runs a line of elegant Pullman buffet sleepers. At Brinkley it also connects with the Batesville and Brinkley R. R. At this place one of the largest lumber mills in the State and a large cotton seed oil mill are located.

At DeVall's Bluff we find a boat-oar factory that ships Arkansas oars all over the world. At Memphis the L. R. & M. R. R. runs into the large depot, connecting with all lines without bus transfer.

The officers of the company are: Rudolph Fink, president and general manager, with headquarters at Little Rock; A. Gordon Jones, superintendent, with headquarters at Memphis; H. W. Morrison, general freight and passenger agent, Little Rock. The road connecting two such growing cities as Memphis and Little Rock certainly has a great future before it.

The Railroads to be Built to Little Rock.

In addition to our present railway facilities, attention should be called to those about to be built, which will make our city the railroad center of the Southwest.

THE CHOCTAW COAL AND RAILWAY CO. are about to build from leased coal lands in Indian Territory east to Little Rock, where connection will be made with the Gould System, the Cotton Belt and the Little Rock and Memphis. THE MISSISSIPPI AND LITTLE ROCK R. R. is now building from Duncan, on the Arkansas Midland, west to Little Rock. THE ST. LOUIS AND SAN FRANCISCO is about to build from Springfield, Mo., via Harrison to Little Rock.

THE MEMPHIS, LITTLE ROCK AND PARIS R. R. is a contemplated line from Little Rock via Hot Springs to Paris, Texas. It will probably be built very soon from Little Rock to Hot Springs by a construction company. THE MEMPHIS, LITTLE ROCK AND INDIAN TERRITORY R. R. Co. has filed a mortgage to the Holland Trust Co., which proposes to furnish the money to build the road.

THE NEW ORLEANS, NATCHEZ AND FORT SCOTT R. R. proposes to build from New Orleans, through Louisiana and Arkansas via Little Rock, to Kansas City. THE LITTLE ROCK AND ALEXANDRIA R. R. is to be built from Little Rock to Alexandria, La. THE LITTLE ROCK BELT RAILWAY Co. proposes to belt the city for all railroads. Little Rock will not lack for railroads in the near future.

Steamboats.

Notwithstanding the fact that during the year there is considerable commerce on the Arkansas River, there are at present but five steamboats of any importance with headquarters at Little Rock: the "Anna B. Adams," "J. A. Woodson," "Robert Lawson," "Eli" and "Ella."

The place of honor belongs to the first mentioned. The ANNA B. ADAMS was built in 1889 by its present owner, Capt. H. S. Wood. She is the largest of the Little Rock boats, being 155 feet long and 31 feet beam. She is registered at 315 tons, and could carry the enormous cargo of 1,000 bales of cotton. Her draught is light—only twelve inches—and she easily makes seven miles an hour up stream. In building this fine boat great pains were taken with the hull to make it safe, and the result justifies the plans of the builder. The ANNA B. ADAMS is quite popular as a picnic and moonlight excursion boat, and her decks often present an animated scene.

The J. A. WOODSON, named for one of our prominent citizens, was built in 1881 and repaired last fall. It belongs to the Iron Mountain R. R. The ROBERT LAWSON is owned by a company, of which Mr. T. J. Darragh and Capt. Brinkley are members. It is at present waiting for a new boiler.

The ELI is a useful and industrious freight boat plying up and down the river. At present it leaves the wharf every Thursday. The ELLA is now undergoing repairs. The principal landing place of all these boats is the wharf at the foot of Commerce Street.

LASTLY.

One institution which we would like to describe, did space permit, is the Athletic Association, whose finely equipped "Boat House" is at the foot of Main street on the water's edge. What we need in this rapid age is muscular bodies, and it is the design of the Club to develop them.

There are 200 members, besides 10 life members, and the officers are: Dr. J. W. Beidelman, president; Thos. Lafferty, vice-president; H. C. Bateman, second vice-president, and J. M. Dill, secretary and treasurer. The apartments include—upstairs, a room for directors' meetings, billiard hall, ladies' reception room, and complete gymnasium; and below, baths, rolling-pin alleys, bowling alleys, and boat house supplied with twelve boats which belong to the Association. Such organizations as this should be multiplied.

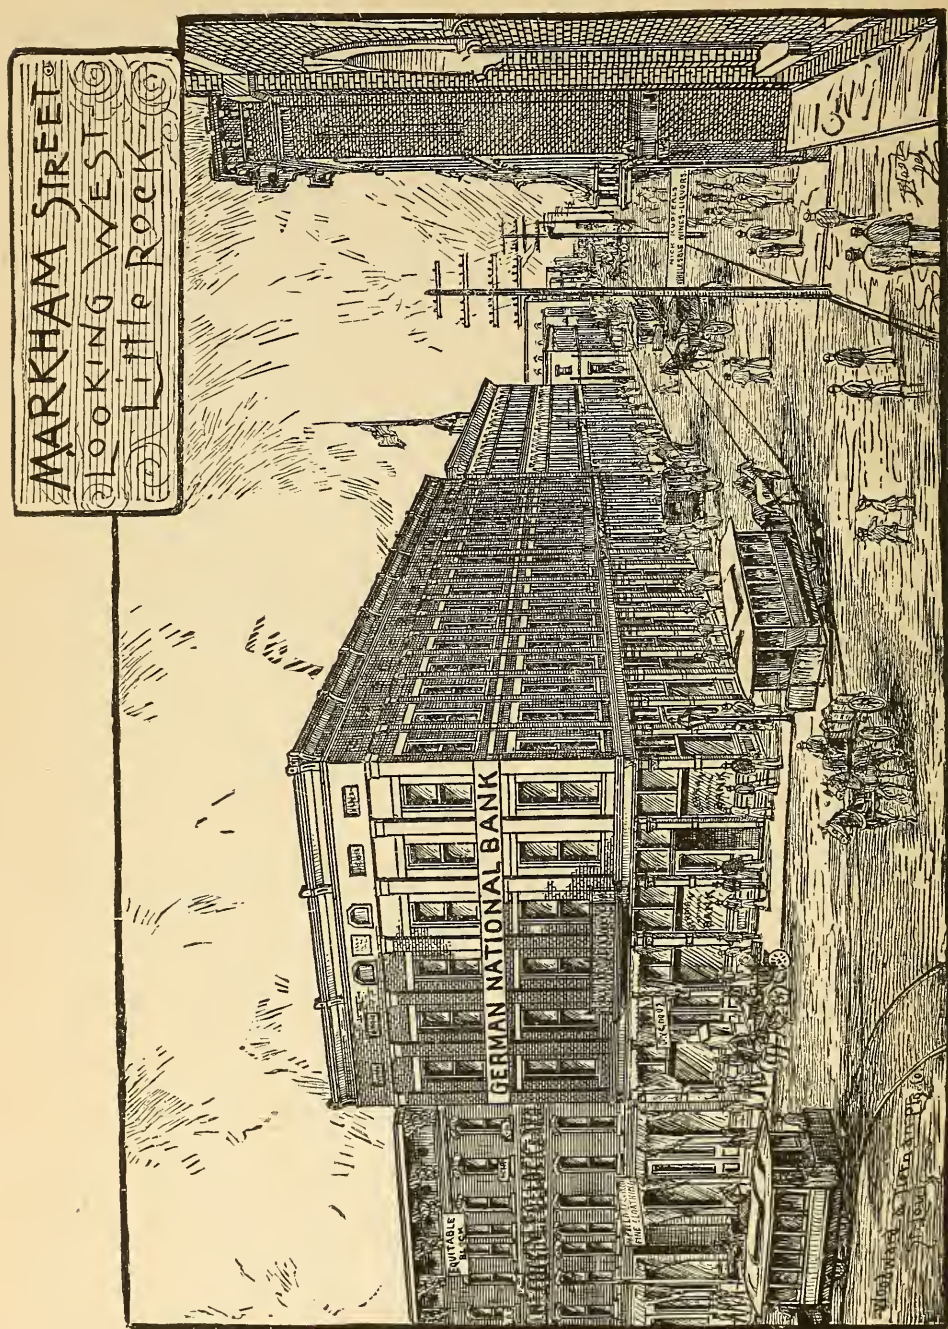

Little Rock is justly proud of her FIRE DEPARTMENT. It is conceded to have no superior in the South. There are five companies, with engine houses located as follows: Defiance No. 1 (headquarters here and at City Hall) foot of Louisiana; Pat Cleburne No. 1, Gaines between 4th and 5th; Pulaski No. 2, Main between 11th and 12th; Torrent No. 4, Markham between Sherman and Commerce; Union No. 5, 21st between Spring and Center.

The Department has 12 paid men, about 200 volunteers, and 17 horses. The apparatus consists of three steam engines, three 4-wheel and two 2-wheel hose carriages, and two hook-and-ladder trucks. The Gamewell Fire Alarm System was recently put in, with which the entire force can be quickly utilized in any part of the city. M. W. Egan is chief and J. B. Cowpland secretary of our admirable Fire Department.

THE MEDICAL COLLEGE, described on pages 20 and 23, since the printing of these pages has changed its location, the building having been purchased by the Press Printing Company. The corps of able physicians who constitute its Faculty have decided to build in a suburban part of the city a more commodious structure that will be better adapted to the purposes of a medical college. Their design is a noble one, and is being promptly seconded by our leading citizens.

In the youthful exuberance of our soul we declared in the historical sketch at the beginning of this book that 'we should be mistaken if the U. S. census did not give Little Rock 40,000 people.' But that prediction showed how little we know about the government of our country. We still believe that Little Rock has not far from that number of inhabitants, but haven't time to count 'em!

In conclusion we cannot refrain from thanking our printers and binders for the excellent work they have done on THE GUIDE. Every page of this book, from the press of TUNNAH & PITTARD, is an eloquent advertisement of their work; while of the binding it is sufficient to say that it was done by the PRESS PRINTING COMPANY.
